NAZIS SMASH ALLIES IN NORWAY

200 Killed In Negro Dance Hall Blaze

SINGLE EXIT TRAPS CROWD IN 'FURNACE'

Roasted Bodies Piled Like Cordwood in Disaster at Natchez, Miss.

MOST VICTIMS ARE YOUNG

More Deaths Expected to Send Death Toll to 250; 10 of 12 in Band Dead.

(By Associated Press)

NATCHEZ, Miss. — More than 200 Negro men and women were burned to death here late last night when flames, racing through decorations of dry Spanish moss, trapped them in a one-exit dance hall.

Coroner R. E. Smith said he and Sheriff Hyde R. Jenkins had counted 203 dead. He expressed the belief a score or more others in hospitals might die, bringing the toll to almost 250.

Hundreds of dancers were in the hall when the fire broke out and flared suddenly. There were no rear or side doors in the building and windows had been boarded up.

The coroner said bodies were "piled up like cordwood."

"The skin was peeling from faces, blood oozed from mouths and flesh was broken," he said. "From my examination, it appeared that most of the people died of suffocation. A majority of the victims were about 15 or 16 years old. There were about as many men as women victims.

"The bodies were piled up in funeral parlors and no identifications have been made yet. The undertakers told me they would embalm the bodies and then line them up and let relatives file by to identify kinsmen."

Smith declared that 10 of the 12 members of the Walter Barnes' orchestra of Chicago, which played last night, perished.

V. H. Jeffries, a photographer, who reached the scene a short time after the disaster, said the walls and tin roof of the building remained in place but that the inside was gutted.

Most of the dead were found piled up near the orchestra stand, away from the one exit.

The place was known as the Rhythm night club and sponsored regular dances at which "big-name" bands played.

REPORTS TODAY

Grand Jury to End Inquiry in Crime Cases This Afternoon.

The Richland county grand jury which convened yesterday to investigate 14 cases, was expected to report late this afternoon. At noon there were still three cases to be investigated.

Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott has asked open indictments in 12 cases and secret indictments against two individuals not yet apprehended.

The docket held several important cases, including those of three Ellwood City, Pa., youths charged with armed robbery in connection with the Main street hold-up of Philip Schmutzler more than two weeks ago.

Two escaped inmates from the Indiana state prison who staged a gun battle with State Highway Patrolman W. C. Smith last Thursday before they were captured, and John W. McGugin, Monroe township farmer charged with arson, are among the other important cases.

GUFFEY WIDENS ELECTION LEAD

Pennsylvania New Dealer Far Ahead in Primary; Heavy Vote for Roosevelt.

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA—Sen. Joseph F. Guffey, down-the-line supporter of the New Deal, held a steadily widening lead today for Democratic nomination for U. S. senator in Pennsylvania's primary which gave President Roosevelt a heavy test vote.

The president's name was placed on a presidential preference ballot by the Democratic state committee which endorsed him for a third term.

Guffey, who had said his defeat would be interpreted as "repudiation of President Roosevelt and the New Deal," never lost his early lead over his chief rival, Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man supported by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence and other leaders.

Guffey 269,538.

In the same tabulation, William N. McNair, former mayor of Pittsburgh—who opposed the New Deal—polled 35,457.

The count from 3,303 districts gave the president 263,303 votes—the highest received by any candidates in top contests on the Democratic ballot.

Although Mr. Roosevelt's was the only name listed, there were scattered write-in votes for Vice President John N. Garner, James A. Farley and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Thomas A. Dewey of New York swung far ahead in write-in votes

FIREWOOD HELD DYNAMITE CAP

Iowa Family Lucky That Chunk Was Too Big For Furnace.

WEBSTER CITY, Iowa—Fortunately for Dr. L. F. Biddleman and his family he was unable to jam a large chunk of wood into the furnace.

(By United Press)

DETROIT — John Roxborough, co-manager of heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, former Mayor Richard Reading, 89 members of the Detroit police department and 46 others were indicted by a one-man grand jury today on policy conspiracy charges.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea, named in two previous indictments and now awaiting trial, again was included in today's indictments. The police department members included one former superintendent of police, an inspector, nine lieutenants, six detectives, 34 sergeants and 37 patrolmen.

The indictments contained two counts: conspiracy to permit operation of a lottery, and obstruction of justice for a consideration.

Names of the remaining defendants were not immediately made known. Warrants were issued for the entire group and police and investigators for the grand jury were dispatches to arrest them as rapidly as possible."

Charges Collusion.

Judge Homer Ferguson, acting as the one-man grand jury investigation alleged collusion between gamblers and officials, said arraignments would begin as rapidly as the defendants were taken into custody.

The indictments today were the third major ones returned by the grand jury. The first charged conspiracy in operation of a million dollar baseball pool and the second charged conspiracy in operation of policy rackets and brothels in the out-county area. Today's indictments dealt with

BAR WORKERS

700 Pickets Block Gates at Akron Rubber Plant.

AKRON—(INS)—Pickets prevented all employes of the struck General Tire & Rubber company from going to work today with the exception of about six maintenance workers as the United Rubber Workers local of the company charged the city ith aiding in strike breaking.

With 700 members of the URW-CIO on the picket line, a squad of 75 patrolmen was rushed to the plant this morning when shifts of maintenance men changed.

The union charged that between 20 and 25 strike breakers were allowed to enter the plant Monday under police guard and demanded that they leave the plant.

Until this morning about 100 office and maintenance employes had been allowed to pass through the picket line, but they were halted today and told to go home.

The URW called a strike April 10 at the plant after conferences on a wage dispute failed.

Survey Shows Parking Meters, More Police Favored In City

Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield are in favor of the installation of parking meters and emphatically endorse establishment of a traffic squad in the police department to bring about strict enforcement of traffic regulations.

This was indicated today in a partial report of a survey conducted by the Chamber of Commerce to obtain a working base for curing the city's traffic ills.

Of a total of more than 600 questionnaires distributed by the chamber nearly 200 had been returned today. They disclosed a majority of affirmative answers to 11 questions dealing with Mansfield's traffi problem.

The report showed that 157 of the questionnaires were returned by persons who drive regularly; nine by persons who operate a car occasionally, and six non-drivers.

Strict enforcement of all traffic regulations headed the list of suggestions toward improvement of snarled driving conditions within the city limits. 168 persons favoring the action as against seven who opposed such a plan.

There was a vote of 114 to 37 in favor of enlargement of the police department by additional patrolmen to be detailed exclusively to traffic.

On the controversial question of parking meters, once proposed for

It was doubted if the fruit trees were far enough along to be extensively damaged by frost, but a number of early spring plants and flowers may be stunted by it, weather experts believed.

The temperature dropped to the freezing point again last night, but registered at 52 this noon.

Publishers' Chief Praises European War Coverage.

NEW YORK —(AP)— President John S. McCarrens told the American Newspaper Publishers' Association today that Americans are better informed about the European war than the peoples of any country in the struggle.

"This condition is an undoubted boon for everybody and merits preserving at all costs," he declared in a prepared address.

McCarrens, vice president and general manager of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, said publishers were proud of the job being done by newspapermen abroad.

Check on 'Dummy Company' to Solve Tire Thefts In City

Mansfield police today planned to join the inquiry into the activities of an alleged $1,000,000 tire theft ring smashed last week by Cleveland police and which resulted yesterday in the arrest of a Buffalo, N. Y., tire distributor.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said he believed the gang to be the same one that has victimized scores of Mansfield motorists during the past several years by stripping cars parked on Mansfield streets of spare tires and wheels.

Bates said he planned to go to Cleveland where a 57 year-old suspect described by authorities as head of a "dummy company," is being held. Bates said he would question him concerning possible operations of the gang here.

A license number, taken by a witness to a tire theft here several months ago had been turned over to Cleveland police, the chief said, and it is believed the number will link the gang with the Mansfield thefts.

Cleveland detectives had said the dummy company had solicited orders from legitimate tire distributors and then filled them with stolen spare tires and wheels.

Arrest of the alleged ringleader was disclosed after Cleveland detectives joined Toledo police in raiding three tire theft shops. More than $5,000 worth of tires were recovered and files were confiscated showing the dummy company sold from $2,000 to $5,000 worth of tires a month.

Yesterday a Buffalo, N. Y., tire distributor was arrested when Cleveland authorities traced and recovered 100 stolen tires in that city. He was charged with receiving stolen property.

2ND MT. GILEAD FUGITIVE HELD

Youth Who Fled County Jail Sunday Captured in Athens, Sheriff Reports.

MT GILEAD—Clyde Kelly, 16, of Mt. Gilead, second of the pair of youths who walked away from the Morrow county jail Sunday night, returned to jail today by Sheriff Oscar George following his capture in Athens last night.

Kelly's companion, Richard Roop, 19, of Mt. Vernon, was back in jail yesterday after surrendering to Sheriff Clyde Biggs of Knox county at 3 p. m. Monday, after 18 hours of freedom.

When captured Kelly was in possession of a car belonging to H. H. Denton, auto dealer at nearby Cardington, Morrow county officials said. Denton's car was reported stolen from Cardington on the night of the break.

Following Roop's capture Monday, he told Sheriff Biggs that he became separated from Kelly outside the jail and hiked to his home in Mt. Vernon, where he "borrowed" a neighbor's car and drove to Coshocton, later returning to his father's home in Mt. Vernon. Morrow officials said Roop surrendered on the advice of his father.

The youths, both being held on charges of auto theft, walked away from the jail about 8:30 p. m. Sunday after Roop, a trusty, unlocked the door of Kelly's cell, officials said.

Mansfield, Shelby Officers Without Clues In Hold-Ups

Mansfield and Shelby police today were without a single clue in robbery of the state liquor store at Shelby and the attempted hold-up of Samilson's, women's apparel shop, in Mansfield's downtown.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today discounted a theory that the gunman, who was frightened from the Samilson store by the assistant manager, was the same bandit who robbed the liquor store in Shelby six hours later.

Although there was some similarity in descriptions given by both persons who were held up, Bates said they did not tally in the respect that the gunman was dressed differently.

A bandit was frightened from the Samilson store Tuesday afternoon by Miss Mildred DeWitt, daughter of a former city policeman, when she shouted "here comes the boss" while the man held her at gun point. He fled without obtaining any money.

At 8:30 p. m., a gunman walked in to the Shelby state liquor store, robbed the clerk of $110 and fled after ordering him into a back room.

British, Norse Retreat After 'Sharp Clash'

Germans Claim Major Victory Scored At Steinkjer, Driving Allies Out Of Town North of Trondheim; Nazis Press Offensive.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The war office announced today that British troops in the Trondheim area had beaten off a strong German counter-attack "after some sharp fighting" yesterday and had reestablished their lines.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM—German forces in Norway were reported here today to have scored a major victory at Steinkjer and driven British and Norwegian troops out of the town north of Trondheim.

A land, air and naval attack figured in the reported victory.

Reports reaching here from Norwegian frontier points indicated that the Germans are pressing the war to the Allies and Norwegians.

The capture of Steinkjer was regarded here as the first major success for the Germans since they reached Hamar. German naval, air and land units were described as cooperating to blast out British and Norwegian troops who had driven south to Steinkjer from the British landing port of Namsos.

Both Allied and German forces claimed—officially or unofficially—to occupy Lillehammer and Rena on the vital east central front. But best information indicated that fighting there was actually patrol fighting preliminary to a major battle.

The battle for Narvik was reported to be proceeding slowly. The Germans were said to be fighting strongly within staunch fortifications which they had forced the Norwegians to construct for them.

The Allied-Norwegian force must fight up hill to some of the German outposts and the operation was expected to take time. The Germans have considerable machine gun ammunition which was brought to Rombak Heights by airplanes which landed on a frozen lake.

Hitler Present.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler was reported here to be personally encouraging the German forces at Narvik and insisting that all possible aid be sent them by air.

The Germans now claim to have established direct contact between Oslo and all coastal points as far north as Krisitansund. Reinforcements are being rushed from Oslo to the Lillehammer front. The Germans hope, it was indicated, to smash through the Lillehammer area and make contact with their forces at Trondheim.

Reports in Stockholm suggested that the Germans managed to get reinforcements to Trondheim by sea despite the British blockade.

In any event, it was reported here that one German force sailed up through the fjords to Beitsfjord and a battle ensued with Allied warships there. Simultaneously a strong land force, aided by airplanes, moved north from Trondheim, taking Levanger and Verdalen. Steinkjer was then attacked in a combined naval, air and land bombardment and the

BOMBS: British Raid Five Nazi Plane Bases From Air

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Great Britain announced today that her bombing planes had attacked five German air bases regarded as "available to the enemy for use in the invasion of Norway."

The British bombers, said an air ministry announcement, streaked out in last night's darkness and attacked the big air base on the North sea island of Sylt and sank two patrol vessels in the vicinity, and also attacked German air bases at the Norwegian cities of Aalborg, Kristiansand, Oslo and Stavanger.

The Sylt airdrome especially was "heavily and successfully attacked," said the announcement. "Bombs were dropped on hangars and runways. Several fires were started and a large explosion occurred."

The British government announced that the empire now had 2,000,000 men under arms, exclusive of the royal navy, the marines, the mercantile marine and the royal air force. Furthermore, it was said, the armies in France and the Near East "are steadily being augmented."

Closer attention was paid to the status of two neutral nations, Sweden and Italy.

In London diplomatic observers saw the Allies as warning Italy to refrain from joining Germany in the war, and British quarters, noting German press criticism of Sweden, suggested that Germany might be planning operations which would affect Sweden.

Of Italian policy the Bologna newspaper, Resto Del Carlino, forecast a German victory in the war and declared that Italy's future as well as Germany's was at stake in the outcome.

THREAT: Nazis Mass Armed Troops Across From Sweden

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—A spokesman for the French war ministry said today German troops and arms were being embarked aboard transport ships accompanied by icebreakers at German ports on the Baltic sea across from Sweden.

The embarkations were interpreted by the spokesman as an "evident menace" to Sweden following the German invasions of Norway and Denmark.

The possibility that the German force was intended simply to reinforce the Nazi expeditionary corps in the Oslo sector of southern Norway was not excluded by the spokesman, but he pointed out that the scene of action made this unlikely.

The Germans were said to be massing at ports directly opposite southern Sweden and well to the east of the Danish straits through which transports for Norway would pass

The presence of icebreakers also was taken to indicate the fleet was destined to operate farther north in the Baltic where the waters still are cluttered with ice floes left later than usual by the long, hard winter.

French military sources have expressed belief that the Germans might go into Sweden to bolster their Norwegian campaign.

CHAPTER XXIV

Betty snorted her derision and flung herself flat upon the couch. "Bosh!" she exclaimed heatedly. "What is money, anyway? Why should the possession of a great fortune make any difference to Eric? He can eat but one meal at a time, live in but one house at a time, and wear but one suit of clothes at a time. Those are the essentials of living and basically these are all that money can buy. If you're ruch you pay a higher price for these things; if you're poor you economize and buy plainer things and derive just as much satisfaction from them.

"Food, shelter and clothing, those are the only requisites to life that money can buy. But they alone are not sufficient to make life worth while. Every human being on the face of the earth needs and wants health and happiness, and neither you nor I nor the lowliest man in the world can purchase them. They are gifts from God and are bestowed impartially upon the rich and poor alike. I called Eric a heel a moment ago, Clara; I should have called him a fool, because he is a fool. He's madly in love with one of the best girls in the world and claims he will be the happiest man alive if and when he marries her. Would any man of intelligence place money above the one thing that money cannot buy, his own happiness?"

Clara applauded generously as Betty rose with a flushed face from the couch. "You argue very eloquently, my dear," she teased, "but you mentioned nothing about security, freedom from want, and those extra touches of luxury which every person alive desires. Eric is really not quite the fool you consider him to be. He can be happy with Elaine, in a hovel, yes, but he can be even happier with her in a castle. Love isn't just a question of taking, cherub; it's a matter of giving, too. And Eric wants to give Elaine all those things she had always wanted but never had. I admire him for that attitude and I think he's very much of a man, a real man!"

Clara had not intended to display so much fervor in her defense of Eric, but though she had endeavored to keep her voice flat and cool, an unconscious tremble lent to it a peculiar quality.

Betty glanced with interest at her scarlet cheeks and into her eyes there crept the beginning of a knowing gleam. She walked slowly over to the chair and looked down at the embarrassed girl.

"Clara, are you sure your interest in Eric is just a friendly one; that you don't like him more than you have admitted to me?"

"You're being silly," Clara retorted irritably. "I like Eric very much and I suppose that in the course of time I could become very fond of him. But as it is—what in the world prompted you to ask such an idiotic question?"

It was on the tip of Betty's tongue to tell her why but before she could summon the necessary words Donald, the Blanchard butler, appeared in the doorway.

"Miss Elaine Warburton and Mr. Reardon have arrived, Miss Blanchard," he said respectively.

Clara sprang from her chair, a happy smile on her lips. She wheeled on Betty as the butler slipped unobtrusively out of the room. "Now listen, Betty Gordon, if you don't treat Eric nicely I'll never speak to you again."

"I know how to behave, my high-hat friend," Betty declared indignantly. "And incidentally, if you really do care for Eric more than you care to let on to me, it would be a wise thing for you to remember that he is engaged to Elaine and that you happen to be one of her best friends."

Was her love for Eric as obvious as all that? Clara flushed before Betty's sharp, knowing eyes and she turned her eyes away. But how silly. Hearts weren't being worn on the sleeve this season. Betty had just happened to guess correctly. No one knew, no one would ever know just how much she actually did care for Eric. It was just as Betty said, he was engaged to Elaine and she was Elaine's friend.

Eric appeared even handsomer than he had looked the day Clara had the long discussion with him in her father's office. As he and Elaine walked into the softly-lighted, well furnished, room his face had that peculiarly clean, flushed appearance which only warm rain beating at the cheek manages to impart, and his eyes were bright and clear as though the walk through the storm had driven the cobwebs of despair and worry from his mind. Clara smiled with satisfaction. She had been right in her judgment of him. Eric was all man once he was in an environment to which he was accustomed.

Elaine, too, was thinking along the same line. All during the long walk from the subway station up Fifth avenue to the Blanchard house she had seemed to be with a different Eric, an Eric who laughed often, an Eric who was like a happy-go-lucky boy again, the same carefree, irresponsible boy with whom she had fallen in love.

But strangely enough it was an Eric she could not truthfully claim she liked. Of course she was probably being silly, but somehow she couldn't help feeling that in this sort of atmosphere he was slipping away from her, and that Clara was unconsciously helping him to do so. Elaine looked with interested eyes at the two of them as they sat chatting easily with each other upon the couch. That was peculiar too; Eric was not the type of man who made friends easily, yet he seemed to know Clara very well. And Betty—why was she sitting so tensely in her chair; why were her eyes so hard and her lips closed so tightly?

"Elaine, how about you and me going out into the kitchen and getting something to eat?" Betty rose grimly from her chair with the air of one who has come to a great decision.

* * *

Clara glanced up to look, a sudden frown marring the beauty of her face. "What's wrong with having the food brought in here?" she said softly.

Betty grinned impudently. "I want to raid the icebox, and besides, I want to talk to Elaine—alone. You don't object, do you?"

"She probably wants to do a lot of talking about clothes," Eric said with a knowing grin. He glanced mischieviously at Betty. "I understand women don't like to discuss fashions before men. They're afraid we'll find out too much about them."

"I'm a woman, too," Clara said shortly, a quizzical expression in her eyes. "Or don't you think so?"

"A very beautiful woman, if you want a frank opinion," Eric told her gallantly. "Of course, you aren't as beautiful as Elaine, but, well, it's an honor to sit beside you."

* * *

The bickering between Betty and Clara had amused Elaine but at the same time she could not help feeling that there was more lurking beneath the surface of their remarks than they cared to let on. She looked at Betty's taut, pale face and rose wordlessly from her chair. It must be important to effect Betty that way, she thought.

Elaine glanced idly about as they walked down the long, carpeted hall which seemingly wound its way about the entire house. For the first time since they had become friends, Elaine realized just how wealthy Clara's family really was, what it meant to be the only daughter of the owner of a huge department store. Never before in her life had she seen such lavish furniture and fittings. Why, the paintings that hung along the walls must have cost a fortune!

She looked at Betty once they were seated at the kitchen table with half a cold roast chicken before them. Betty's actions were nervous and her light laugh seemed almost to be forced from her throat. Elaine looked straight into her eyes. "All right, Betty, what is it all about?"

Betty said nothing for a long time, just sat quietly in her chair munching at the chicken. She finally shrugged her shoulders. "You and Eric, Elaine, when are you two going to be married?"

Elaine almost choked over her share of the chicken as a laugh welled from her throat. Wide-eyed with amazement, she glanced at her still sober-faced chum.

"Betty, do you mean to say you walked me all the way out here just to ask me a question like that?"

Betty slowly nodded her head and put her chicken back on the plate. "It's more important than it seems, Elaine. If you are interested in my advice, I would suggest that you marry Eric—tomorrow!"

The smile disappeared from her lips as Elaine realized for the first time just how serious Betty was. Thoughts raced at lightning speed through her brain and instinctively she felt that Betty was on the verge of explaining Clara's and her own peculiar behavior. Carefully she wiped her fingers on the napkin, trying to think out an answer.

"Eric and I are going to be married at the end of the month," she told Betty with a happy smile. "We decided he was to have a month in which to try out his job, and that if he felt he could stick it out despite his mother's disapproval we would be married. And Betty, there are only nine more days to go!"

"A lot can happen in nine days," Betty said mysteriously. "Elaine, I wish you wouldn't ask any questions but just do as I suggest. Marry Eric tomorrow!"

* * *

Her eyes were almost wild with pleading as she sprang from her chair and walked aimlessly up and down the white tiled floor. "If you are in love you shouldn't wait anyway. You might be struck by an auto and killed, or struck by lightning while you're out in a storm such as this and—and sometimes a girl can even lose a man to some one else."

Elaine grinned. "Well, Miss Calamity Jane, if you are worried about Helen you can forget all about her. Eric told me she left for California last night. She's traveling by plane and she should be home by now."

"Elaine, I'm not worried about Helen, but I am worried about Eric and—and Clara!"

Too horrified at the implication of those words to speak Elaine could only stare at Betty's tortured face. In the stillness of the room she could hear the wild beat of her heart—or was that the thunder that roared ominously overhead? Eric and Clara? Absurd! Clara wasn't interested in love; she was going to be a business woman. Betty was being a little bit silly, as usual. Or was she? Could she be explaining to her the reason for the sudden change that had taken place in Eric; could she be trying to explain the reason for the strange manner in which Clara had greeted him?

"I don't know much about the whole thing," Betty continued softly. "All I do know is that Clara had a long talk with Eric at the store the other day and tonight she acted very strangely when I asked her if she was in love with Eric. She denied it, of course, but in such a way that—well, you know how Clara acts when she's telling a lie. I don't think she is really madly in love with Eric yet, but she will be, Elaine, if you don't hurry up and marry him. Once he's married to you, Clara will have the loyalty and decency to forget all about him. But as long as he stays single and she can see him there's a real danger she will fall in love with him, and if that ever happens. . . ."

"It never will happen," Elaine spoke with more confidence than she really felt. "Clara just likes Eric as every one does. I think you are imagining things, Betty. After all, I'm Clara's friend, and in the second place, Eric loves me. What you're suggesting could never happen."

Betty rushed across the room, a relieved smile on her face. "Are you sure about that Elaine? But of course you are. I'm a dumbbell! I guess I was just imagining things. Clara always acts rather peculiar when there's a thunderstorm raging and I just mistook her fear for love."

* * *

Elaine grinned back at her relieved friend, but found herself wondering why Eric had never mentioned that he had met Clara. She sighed. Probably he had been afraid that she would think he was playing department store politics. As though such a thought could ever enter her head. She knew Eric and knew there wasn't a toadying bone in his body. Sometimes she wished he would have more confidence in her love for him.

"Storm is getting worse," Betty remarked conversationally as she placed the remains of the chicken back in the ice-box. "Say, isn't it odd that Clara should be afraid of thunder and lightning. For a moment this evening I was afraid she was going to faint or something."

Elaine welcomed the change of subject. "Remember the time she refused to go to class because there was lightning and she was afraid of being killed?"

Betty nodded her head eagerly as she slammed the ice-box door shut. "And how one teacher said he'd have her expelled if she didn't stop cutting classes? Gee, Elaine, those were the days. If only a person didn't have to grow up. If only we could remain school girls forever. Gosh, when I . . ."

What a changed world it was for the first balloonist. He saw hills and valleys level out. He saw dark clouds serving a thrilling purpose when they reflected a gorgeous sunset. He got a new perspective.

Wise is the man who takes a broad view of today's events and keeps them always in true focus. He makes no mountain out of a rumor and sees no valley as deep as the despair of the pessimists. He is confident that he can take the hurdles as they come.

Such a man has the will to work—and the good judgment to relax when work is done. Paul Waner Still Going Full Speed After 15 Years

Long Bar Takes Third Place In Annual Classic

Team Collects 2941 Total to Reach Berth; Siegenthalers Roll Into Fourth.

ONLY two changes were recorded among the first five in the third annual City handicap bowling tournament after teams ceased firing on the maples at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Long Bar Keglers, led by H. Heiser, hopped into third place by virtue of a 2941 total, while the Siegenthaler Shoes came in with a 2918 for the fourth spot.

Heilman's Grocers still hold the lead with a 3029, but that total may face a test when the defending championship Optimist team hits the alleys Saturday.

* * *

H. Heiser smacked out a 601 with games of 200, 183 and 218, to set the individual pace in the meet last night. A 597 by McBride was the top total turned in by the Siegenthaler bowlers.

The balance of the teams will launch their attack on the pins Saturday and Sunday. Doubles and singles will be bowled Sunday.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY M'LEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Max Baer is a mixture of sweetness and fight.

In one breath the big fellow tells you how, on the night of May 28, he is going to back Tony Galento into a corner and give him the full treatment.

* * *

"I'll hit that loud-mouth everywhere and with everything. He'll get elbows, knees, thumbs, laces and heads. That's what he hands out, so I'll give it to him in a double dose. I was a butcher boy once, and I'll become a butcher boy again."

* * *

Then, almost as quickly as he had flown into a rage—a rage that swelled the veins in his neck and bundled his fists into knots—Baer quieted down, and in an almost confidential whisper, told me why he was fighting again.

"I ain't fightin' for myself any more," he said. "I got enough to take care of myself. I want to make a little extra for some others. Lissen, lemme tell you when I decided to take this fight with Galento."

The swagger was all gone from Max as he told me about a little old woman in her sixties—his Aunt Olive from Omaha. A few months ago, at his home in Livermore, Calif., he came in to find her there. She had come from Omaha to see his baby.

"Get a load of this," Max said. "She had sat up all night on a coach train to save Pullman fare, and had packed her own lunch to save going into the diner. She had done all this to come out and see us and the baby. I took her purse out of her hands, and what do you think she had? Just enough to get her back to Omaha, that is, if she sat up all night again and packed her own lunch."

Maxie didn't look like the Maxie most people know as he told me this story. He didn't sound like the braggart Baer of the sports pages, either. He looked me in the eye, and groped for words, and for once I had the feeling that he wasn't trying to sell me a bill of goods.

"I told my aunt right then that she was going home first class, and live first class from now on," he said. "And so are a lot of the others who mean something to me and have been kind to me. Hell—it's a lot easier to take a punch on the jaw when you're 31 than it is to sit up all night in a day coach when you're sixty-five."

* * *

It's to make a little extra money with which to pad out the annuities he has that Maxie is fighting again. And for the first time since I have known him, and that goes back to the early 1930's when he came to New York to fight Ernie Schaaf in the Garden, Max seems to have what I can best express as "mental peace." The roaring playboy is gone.

Performs In Relays Saturday

Eight Teams Will Open Battle for Golf Championship at Possum Run Course.

AN EVENLY BALANCED eight-team circuit points to a tight championship race in The News-Journal Class B golf league this season.

With the defending championship Harvey Sample Shoes out of the running, four new teams and four veteran clubs are set to open the title chase Thursday, May 23, at Possum Run.

Teams making their debut in the circuit this summer are the City News, Tinkey Lumber company, Tucker Furniture company and the Junior Association of Commerce.

Seasoned vets returning are the Elks Lodge, Central Fruit, Bissman company and the News-Journal. Ohio Public Service, runner-up last year, is also on the sidelines this summer.

League officials today released the personnel of the eight foursomes and according to last year's averages the players in the four positions appear to be well balanced.

Here's personnel of the teams:

Central Fruit—Alex Davis, Homer King, Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, and Lee Arntz.

J. A. C.—Ralph Beilstein Jimmy Morgan, Russell McCullough, and George Schuchmann.

City News—Harry Fay, Frank Lay, Hal Ackley, and "Red" Barrett.

Bissman Company—Adam Brandt, Merle Spurgeon, Pete Schemine, and Dick Maxwell.

Elks Lodge—Marion Ward, Bud Frome, Bud Houston, and Paul Sparks.

Tucker Furniture—Jake Mayer, H. Ferguson, Paul Kelley, and Fred Lewis.

News-Journal—Maurice Byrnes, Harry Case, George Balliet, and Al Heath.

Women's City Tournament Gets Under Way Thursday

EIGHT TEAMS will open hostilities in the Women's City bowling tournament at the Meder alleys at 9 p. m. Thursday.

Clubs performing in the tourney are the Richland Printers, champions of the Women's league which ended recently; Moderne Beauty Salon, Shelley's Chocolates, Carek Florists, Brenner Jewelers, Morgan Dry Cleaners and the Long Bar.

Doubles and singles will be run off Tuesday night, tourney officials stated today.

Indians Looking Forward to Series With New York Yanks

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—The floundering St. Louis Browns were the immediate business at hand today but that didn't keep Manager Oscar Vitt and his Cleveland Indians from mental calculations about their initial meeting with the New York Yankees two weeks hence.

* * * * * *

Their interest was whetted by the possible new discovery—the mighty Yanks may be suckers for southpaw pitching.

* * * * * *

With his own club idle because of a postponement yesterday, Skipper Vitt smiled over news of the latest Yankee downfall before the left-arm slants of Chubby Dean of the Athletics.

"Now, I don't want anyone to think I'm putting too much faith in this left-hander theory," commented Old Os' cautiously, "but I have a sneaking hunch that I have two lefties who may give the Yanks a load of grief.

"We know Al Milnar did mighty well against them last year and Al Smith (a new Indian acquisition) should do even better in my opinion."

* * * * * *

Ultimate success of the latest Cleveland pennant dream probably depends on how they fare against the defending champs who beat them 15 out of 22 games last season.

* * * * * *

Meanwhile, the Tribe had to win the games as they come, including one slated today against the Browns. Johnny Allen was to make his second start on the Indian mound, opposed by Vern Kennedy.

TEAM HOLDS PRACTICE

The Barnes Manufacturing company baseball team will hold its first practice at the diamond at Longview avenue and the Erie railroad at 6 p. m. Thursday. Any player wishing to tryout with the club can report at the playing field.

SETS NEW MARK

GRANVILLE—(INS)—A new Denison record in javelin was written into the books today after Ames Hanna, Granville, tossed the spear 171 feet 9-½ inches in a dual meet with Wittenberg. Denison won the meet 97-½ to 33-5-6. Hanna's toss bettered the old.

Lothes Seeks Record

(Special to The News-Journal)

NEWARK — A sophomore understudy to Newark's great shot putter, Henry (Jabbo) Giles two years ago may add length to Giles' Mansfield Relays mark Saturday in the annual Mansfield feature.

When Giles, greatest Negro athlete in Newark history, was tossing the 12-pound shot to new records two years ago, he was grooming an unknown sophomore, William Lothes, to carry on in Giles' absence.

* * *

* * *

This season Lothes is reaching his peak especially in the shot put event. Already he has topped Giles' Mansfield Relays mark in dual meet competition. Giles broke a record of eight years standing at Mansfield in 1938 when he tossed the shot 50 feet, 3½ inches.

Against Columbus East here last week, Lothes got off his best throw of the season, 50 feet 5¾ inches. Track Coach Edgar Sherman of the Wildcats believes that with warmer weather Lothes will add a foot or more to this mark.

Lothes also tosses the discus but is not considered a threat to records in this event. In two dual meets to date with Mansfield and Columbus East, Lothes has scored "doubles" winning first place in both weight events.

He is six feet one inch in height and weights close to 190 pounds.

Giles, an all-around athlete at Newark high during his three years of competition, owns four Ohio shot put marks. His best toss was 53 feet, one inch in the Central district meet in 1938. He also holds the state record established in 1938 with 52 feet, 2⅛ inches and the Central Ohio league set in 1937 with 51 feet, 3½ inches.

* * *

As a freshman at Toledo university last year, Giles tossed the 16-pound shot to marks that bettered the Ohio Conference record. He has placed in several of the mid-west's big indoor meets this year.

* * *

Lothes will head a delegation of Newark track and field men entering the Mansfield Relays. It will be the largest group sent to Mansfield by Newark.

Four more entries today boosted the total to 39 high schools set for the Mansfield Relays at Stadium field Saturday. New schools today are Spencer high, Green Springs, Newark and Akron Buchtel. Buchtel will have 35 boys in the classic.

Distant Teams Bowl Tonight

Clubs From Honolulu and Dallas Set for ABC Meet.

DETROIT — (AP) — If travel sharpens a bowler's eye for the pins, records in the American Bowling congress championships should go glimmering tonight.

* * *

Rolling on the same program are teams from Honolulu, Dallas, Oklahoma City, and Regina, Sask.

* * *

"Chesty" Joe Falcaro and his New York Schlitz team narrowly missed taking over the five-man leadership in last night's firing. The former match champion missed two easy spares in the opening game for a 150 count and his quintet finished with 2.993 for third place.

Falcaro counted 203 and 226 in his second and third games, but his 579 total was low for the team.

First place in the singles changed hands when Ray Brown of Terre Haute, Ind., rolled up 742 on games of 231, 278 and 233.

Mansfield Golfers Venture Out Again

With one eye on the weather man, Mansfield golfers once more ventured out on the courses yesterday, as snow and rain took what golfers hoped to be a permanent vacation.

Westbrook, Coolridge, and Possum Run managers said today that if the present good weather keeps up the links should be in good shape by the end of the week. Numerous linksmen have ventured out on the courses to date.

WARREN GETS MANAGER

WARREN — (U.P.) — This northeastern Ohio city anticipated its first season in organized baseball today with Billy Rhiel of Youngstown, veteran major and minor league ball player, installed as manager. Warren has joined the Pennsylvania State league, a class D circuit. Rhiel once played with the Detroit Tigers.

Frank Pytlak Ready To Compromise on Contract.

WILLIAMSVILLE, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Cleveland Indian Catcher Frankie Pytlak, one of the two remaining holdouts in the major leagues, said today that the slightest attempt at a compromise would bring his signature to a 1940 contract. Pytlak said he was keeping in shape by batting balls to amateurs and could be ready to play in four days.

River Cancels Ball Game for CincinnatiClub

Sked Says There's a Game, But Flood Says 'No.'

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The schedule says there's a ball game here today but the Ohio river for the first time in major league history says there isn't and that's that.

* * *

The Cincinnati Reds, in fact, aren't even waiting around to see if the flood waters will recede from the ball park in time for a couple of innings. They left at midnight for Chicago, which has a colder climate but keeps dry underfoot, for a two-game series starting tomorrow.

* * *

They hope to be able to pick up here again Saturday against the Pittsburgh Pirates. General Manager Warren C. Giles says they'll play come you-know-what or high water, but the high water is already here and there is some question whether the field will be in playing condition even by Saturday.

The Pirates asked him to transfer the Saturday and Sunday games to Pittsburgh, but Giles said no.

Giles is depending on Groundskeeper Matty Schwab's fire hose siphon invention to drain the fields. It will work if the river is stationary or falling and the weather bureau promises that barring further heavy rains, the river is due to crest today at 60 feet, or a few inches higher than the pitcher's mound.

* * *

It may remain stationary for a day or so after cresting and then start down slowly.

* * *

Outside of possible damage to the field and main worry for the National league champions is too much rest. They have played just three games since the season opened last Tuesday, and while the results have been eminently satisfactory, it's hard to keep in condition in a hotel lobby.

Also, it costs the front office good dough.

His Hit Helps Pirates Defeat Chicago Team

Timely Single In Ninth Inning With Bases Full Gives Pittsburgh 3 to 2 Victory.

By JUDSON BAILEY

WHEN the great guys of baseball are being named, don't let anybody forget Paul Glee Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, now or forever hence.

"Big Poison" has been a kingpin of the Buccaneers for 15 of his 37 years and ball players don't "jest keep rollin'." There will come a time when the fans will ponderously concede that he was quite a fellow when he had it.

Well, as of this date, he still has it.

He went into yesterday's game with the Chicago Cubs in the ninth inning, the Bruins leading 2-1 and the bases loaded with Pirates. Then he singled and the game was over. Score Pittsburgh 3, Chicago 2.

* * *

This was just a routine chore soon to be forgotten by the lean, tanned little Oklahoman who led the National league in batting four different years and probably holds more hitting records than any other player now active in his league.

* * *

But the day before he also went in with the Cubs as a pinch-hitter and, in his first time at bat this year, delivered a double that figured in a three-run rally and a 9-5 victory. That was the 2,800th hit of his major league career. Only seven other players now in the majors have amassed 2,000 or more hits and Paul is well in front.

Floodwaters kept the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals idle yesterday, but the Brooklyn Dodgers exploded a batch of home runs to liquidate the Boston Bees 8-3. The Pirates, Reds and Dodgers are tied for the National league lead.

For Brooklyn, the most encouraging phase of the game was the way old Tex Carlton tightened up after a bad start. He shut out the Bees for the last eight innings, fanning six and never giving a base on balls.

The New York Giants finally won their first game of the season 1-0 at the expense of the Phillies with Harry Gumbert pitching four-hit ball. Kirby Higbe allowed only five hits but gave eight passes and forced the only run of the game across with a walk in the seventh.

Chubby Dean of the Philadelphia Athletics proved his ten-inning triumph over the world champion New York Yankees in the last week's inaugural was no fluke by coming back with a four-hit shutout yesterday, 3-0. Bump Hadley of the Yanks matched his four hits, but was wild.

* * *

Mickey Harris, a recruit the Boston Red Sox brought up from Scranton this spring gave the Washington Senators a seven-hit diet in his first major league start and the slugging Sox rewarded him with a 7-2 victory.

* * *

The western clubs in the American were rained out.

Columbus Fans Want a Winner

Wait for Rickey to Produce Promised Players.

* * *

During spring training Rickey told the fans through the newspapers that Columbus would be in the thick of the pennant fight this season.

* * *

Maybe they will, but not unless they do an about-face and head the other way. Meanwhile, a total of 194 paid spectators were on hand yesterday to see Columbus lose its third straight game of the young season, leaving the Birds in the cellar.

Kansas City defeated Columbus, 3 to 2, thereby moving into first place, a half game ahead of Indianapolis and Louisville.

Milwaukee took a brilliant pitchers, battle from Toledo, 1 to 0, in the only other game of the day. Louisville and St. Paul were rained out and Indianapolis were not scheduled.

* * *

Ed Cole allowed only three hits in the eight innings he worked against the Brewers while Frank Makosky went the route, allowing four hits.

Old Style Start to Be Used at Classic

LEXINGTON -- (AP) — The moot question whether the new Bahr electric starting gate would be used in the Kentucky derby was believed by some horsemen to have been answered by these developments:

* * *

* * *

2. Disclosure that William Hurley, trainer of Bimelech, derby winterbook favorite and a likely started in the Blue Grass, had asked Keeneland authorities to use the old method of starting.

Col. Matt J. Winn, generalissimo at Churchill Downs, said in Louisville he had not decided whether the new Bahr gate would be used in the derby. It was understood that several horsemen had objected to its use in the May 4 classic.

Headley explained the electric feature of the new gate would not be used in the $5,000 added Blue Grass, closing day feature at Keeneland, as he wanted to avoid the possibility of a horse being left at the past by failure of a door to open.

The new gate has been used in all races at Keeneland and there have been no mishaps.

* * *

The Blue Grass may develop in an unscheduled "match" race between two prime derby candidates—Col. E. R. Bradley's unbeaten Bimelech and Joseph E. Widener's Roman, which last week vanquished two derby eligibles.

* * *

"Big Bim" and Roman appeared to be the only certain starters in the Keeneland fixture with Bashful Duck, another Bradley-B, a third possibility.

Schedule for 1941 Released

Buck Cagers to Play Under Round Robin System.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Home and home basketball games with Indiana, Michigan and Northwestern were listed for Ohio State next winter in the 1941 Big Ten cage schedule released today.

* * *

The Buckeyes will play single games with the other six conference schools under the round robin system adopted by the league a few seasons ago.

* * *

The new conference schedule calls for two to five games every Saturday and Monday between Jan. 6 and March 3. The league directors returned to this system after trying out a plan last season which called for five league games a night with a three-week gap of inactivity in mid-season.

FISHING FOR FUN

Tips on Casting: 2

By MILTON KRAFT
(National All-Around Champion)

Milton Kraft, casting champion, illustrates the swing used in the wet fly cast. The swing goes from positions 12 to 4 on the dial. Viewed from the right you can see that Kraft's rod points exactly to 4.

THE WET FLY

THE beginning angler does well to start with "wet fly" casting. With this technique the fly sinks below the surface of the water, instead of floating as in "dry fly" casting.

* * * * *

A beginner probably will attempt to cast by describing a complete semi-circle with the tip. To use the clock-dial illustration introduced in Lesson I, he will powerfully sweep the rod back of him until it points to the figure 9, then whip it forward to 3.

* * * * *

The first thing to correct is "punching" or too liberal application of muscle. It's the spring in the rod that throws the line. The angler, by careful practice, must learn how to release that spring, and not try to substitute his own brawn.

There must be a revision of that semi-circular motion. Stand easily. Imagine yourself in the center of a giant clock-dial and point the rod at the figure 4. Then bring it up with constantly increasing power to 1 o'clock, drift back to 12—that is, with the rod straight up—then make the forward cast. Increase power downward until the rod again points to 4.

* * * * *

Work for smoothness.. Be careful not to make the back and forward cast too fast or jerky. Practice will give you the feel of your line, and observation by an experienced friend will be helpful.

* * * * *

A beginner should use no more than 35 feet of line and increase it 5 feet at a time until 50 or 60 feet can be handled.

Tomorrow—The Dry Fly

Here's News From Other Ohio State League Training Camps

Don Dudley of Tiro, righthand pitcher, was one of the four youths released today by the Mansfield Braves. He and the others will be sent to Warren, another Class D team, and a Cleveland farm. The Mansfield club will pay the players' expenses to Warren. The Braves resumed training sessions at the Fairground early today and Manager Dewey Stover expects to release several other candidates soon in order to get his starting team set for the opener Wednesday, May 1.

* * *

LIMA—With favorable weather having placed Halloran park in playing condition, the Lima Pandas held their first outdoor workout of the season Monday. The session began at 1 p. m. with heavy batting practice highlighting the program of Manager Lefty Settlemire.

Having met with inclement weather ever since they reported April 1, the Pandas will go at top speed in this week's drill in an effort to be in shape for the opener at Mansfield May 1.

Settlemire, who has reduced the squad to 35 members, hopes to have a line on the ability of his rookies within a few days.

* * *

FINDLAY—Grover Hartley will start whittling today. He plans to reduce his rookie baseball squad from 46 to around 30. A long workout yesterday under more favorable weather conditions followed by an intra-squad game in which the Ruleys and Simons battled to a 6-6 tie.

George Todhunter, shortstop on last year's championship team, turned in several fielding gems for the Ruleys. Glen (Red) May and Ed Abbott, veteran right handed pitchers, worked in three innings on the mound and gave a good account of themselves.

"Last year I didn't have any left handed pitchers but this year I have more than I know what to do with," said the manager.

* * *

FREMONT—The Fremont Green Sox had an active day at Anderson field Sunday, but the Sabbath program failed to include a scheduled practice tilt between Manager Ray Caldwell's charges and White's Plumbers.

Despite a drying wind and bright sun, the base-paths were too soggy to permit infield play and the contest was dropped in favor of a long hitting drill. Pilot Caldwell said it was likely his club and the Plumbers would clash next Sunday.

Also tentatively scheduled this week is a game with a Bettsville team. All other practice sessions from now until the opening of the Ohio State league season at Tiffin, May 2 will include intra-squad games, Caldwell stated.

Among the half-dozen hurlers who served in the clouting workout was none other than Manager Caldwell, himself. The former Yankee and Indian hill star, who twirled a no-hit, no-run game against New York in 1919, faced six of seven batters, but took things easy in his first flinging of the year.

Also feeding tosses to the long string of swatters were George Freeh of Fremont; Clarence Halter of Wooster; George LaLonde of Lorain; Howard Aldrich of Green Springs; and Roy Conrov of Akron.

While most of the lads did some pretty heavy pounding at the plate, Dutch Waters, right field candidate from Akron, and Al Koebel of Fremont, trying out for third base, showed exceptionally well with the mace.

Denies Report Of 'Pressure'

Big Ten Commissioner Says He Wasn't Threatened.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the western conference, today emphatically denied that the University of Chicago had brought "pressure" to be kept on the Big Ten basketball schedule.

His denial followed reports that Chicago, which discontinued football, had threatened to "blow the lid" off Big Ten affairs if it was barred from basketball competition. The latter would have been considered equivalent to ouster from the conference.

Big Ten athletic directors, accepting an explanation that no aspersions were ever intended against any member of the conference by any spokesman for Chicago, Sunday voted to schedule 1941 basketball games with Chicago.

CLEVELANDER CALLS EUROPE TO HALT WARS

Telephone Messages Fail to Move Italian and Dutch High Officials.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Abe Pickus, Cleveland's peace salesman, continues his merry, unrehearsed ringing of European and Far Eastern telephones in an effort to stop the silly wars of the present and future.

Latest advices from all fronts indicated that the wars were still going on but Abe was right in there with the old college try. Successively the self-appointed telephone ambassador called these members of the European board of experts:

Premier Mussolini of Italy

Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister.

Y. Suma, Japanese foreign spokesman.

Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands.

As a net result Abe won himself conversations with two lesser officials, one in the Netherlands and the other in Italy. First he had a transatlantic chat with a Mr. Farace, identified as the secretary to Count Ciano.

This was mostly a one-way affair with the Cleveland oil man dictating a message he wanted conveyed to Mussolini for his own good and the good of the world. After a lot of preliminary spelling of names—"P like in Patrick—I-C-U-S"—and "Can-you-hear-me?"—Pickus said:

"I would like to have Mussolini call all European nations to a conference table to stop the war."

"How?"

"The only thing is for Europe to agree to have a United States of Europe—you know same as we have a United States of America."

Thoughtfully, Abe added:

"Mussolini would be better off if he didn't talk war all the time but talked peace."

That was Abe's message to the premier. Signor Farace spoke real good American. Every time Abe drew a breath, Farace said, soothingly:

"Okay, okay."

Next Abe ran into a bit of Dutch stubbornness. After calling Queen Wilhelmina—"if she can speak English"—he got a Mynheer Van Heenstra, the queen's secretary.

Abe again dictated his platform-for-peace, but this time he added:

"Unless the queen gets busy there won't be any more Holland."

ATTORNEYS GO TO BAR MEET

Galbraith Leads Delegation Attending State Session.

A delegation of Mansfield attorneys headed by Atty. James W. Galbraith, president of the Richland County Bar association, will go to Columbus Thursday to attend the annual spring meeting of the Ohio State Bar association.

The three-day session will be climaxed with a banquet Friday night at the Deshler-Wallick hotel at which James G. Rogers, master of Timothy Dwight college at Yale university, is scheduled to speak.

Many of the annuals should be pinched back when only a few inches high, to induce growth of side shoots.

THEATERS

Wonders of Medicine.

Lew Ayres, who has one of the leading roles in "Dr Kildare's Strange Case" which opens today at the Ohio theater, shows the miracle-working insulin shock treatment for mental cases. This is the fourth Dr. Kildare picture in a series. Ayres plays the title role with Lionel Barrymore as his gruff but kindly mentor, Dr. Gillespie. Ayres turns detective to find a secret locked in an insane man's brain, and through the wonder of medicine, solves the problem.

* * *

Story Always Popular.

Although it has been popular with old and young for the last 120 years "Swiss Family Robinson" is now on the screen, showing at the Madison theater through Friday. The spirit of the famous book has been followed closely while the exciting adventures of the four Robinson boys and their resolute parents on an uninhabited South Sea island have been faithfully duplicated. Thomas Mitchell, Edna Best, Freddie Bartholomew, Terry Kilburn and others are in the cast. The co-feature is one of the Dr Christian series, starring Jean Hersholt.

* * *

Laughs and Tears.

In the subtle art of combining comedy with romance, Fred Mac Murray and Madeleine Carroll yield to few teams. They keep the story moving at a fast tempo in "Honeymoon in Bali" which is now showing at the Majestic theater. Helen Broderick and little Carolyn Lee add much to the cast. Also featured at the Majestic is Bette Davis in "The Old Maid," which co-stars Miriam Hopkins and George Brent. The story deals with the lives and loves of two cousins, Charlotte and Delia Lovell.

* * *

Women in Prison.

Beginning Thursday at the Park theater will be "Saga of Death Valley," starring Roy Rogers and "Convicted Woman," with an all star cast. The latter story is one of women in prison which bares the deplorable conditions that sometimes exist in these houses of correction. Rochelle Hudson, Frieda Inescort, Lola Lane and June Lang head the cast.

* * *

Bette Davis As Queen.

"Private Lives of Elizabeth and Ritz theater through Thursday has Ritz theater through Thursday as Bette Davis and Errol Flynn in the leading roles. This film in technicolor tells a highly dramatic and human story against the magnificent pageantry of the Elizabethan court. It deals with the one great love in the life of England's most famous queen Olivia de Havilland also has an important character part. The co-feature is the Mexican story "Llano Kid."

Crew of Ill-Fated Train

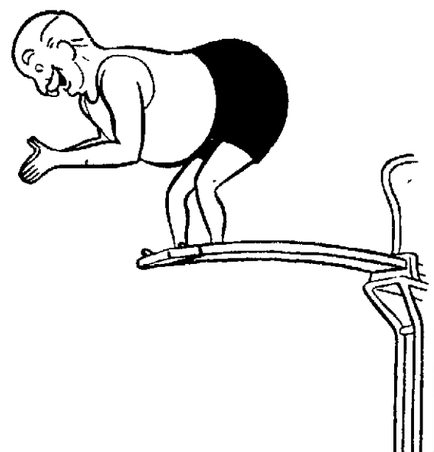
IDENTIFY SOLDIER

PARIS—(U.P.)—A skeleton, to which still was attached a British identity disc bearing the name and unit of a man who was posted as "missing" in the World war, was found by workmen while excavating not far from the British lines in France.

"THE SAME HIGH QUALITY, 'EXPENSIVE' PAUL JONES?"



"YES, AT A NEW LOW PRICE... $1.05 A PINT!"

PAUL JONES is the same "expensive" whiskey it's always been: still DRY (not sweet), still ALL whiskey, still the same high quality that's made it famous as "A Gentleman's Whiskey" since 1865. Only one thing is changed: it's way down in price! Try it!

STOCKS MOVE IRREGULARLY LOWER TODAY

Follow Traders' Experiment With Market; Commodities Are Uneven.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks moved irregularly lower in a narrow range today as traders experimented with market trends.

Steels reacted from their runup of yesterday, losing ground by fractions.

Among those exhibiting softness were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Chrysler, Douglas, Anaconda and International Paper.

* * *

Bonds and commodities were uneven. Amsterdam and London markets were fairly steady, but the Paris Bourse was weak.

* * *

"In a way," said one commentator, "This is fortunate, because we shall probably have the largest world's carryover on record next August and bumper crops in several countries would be a calamity as far as price is concerned."

CHEWS POISON WITH PEANUTS

Fumigating Pellet Falls as Appetizing Delicacy.

DENVER—Charles F. Myers dumped a sack of peanuts in his pocket.

After he had munched half of them he remembered he had put a poison pellet left by fumigators at his home in the same pocket.

He searched frantically for the pellet, couldn't find it and ran to General hospital for emergency treatment.

He's doing all right.

LEARN OF DEATH

Son of John L. Cahill, Known In City, Killed In Mishap

Mansfielders today learned of the death in Cleveland yesterday of John H. Cahill, 25, son of John L. Cahill, representative of Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., who is well known in business circles here.

Young Cahill died of a fractured skull and internal injuries received when his automobile spun out of control, swerved across the highway, sideswiped a utility pole, returned to the pavement and skidded more than 200 feet. Cahill was to have gone to Chicago next week to take a job as steward on a lake freighter.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Cincinnati painters had to take a back seat today after 96 brush wielders coated a two story house in 8 minutes and 30 seconds while 2,000 spectators watched. GLEE CLUB AND SOLOISTS SCORE HIT AT CONCERT

17-Year-Old Singer Highlights Program Attended by 250 at Senior High Auditorium.

By KEN WOODMAN

Rating tops with an audience of 250 which demanded encores after nearly every group of numbers, the Jonothan Glee club and four Mansfield soloists presented a concert at Senior High school auditorium last night that was unusual in many respects.

Miss Harriet Johnston, 17-year-old member of the senior class under whose sponsorship the program was given, opened her group of mezzo-soprano solos with the well-known "Ich Liebe Dich" of Edvard Grieg. But she brought to the number a richness of voice that can only be described as amazing in a singer her age.

The Chabrier "Espana," played at two pianos by Margaret B. Hall and Thelma Reed, was done with the same niceness of timing which characterized all three of the numbers by the duo. It exceeded the others, however, in rhythmic feeling and was second only to the "Blue Danube Arabesques" in technical display.

For an encore the duo played—and with effective precision—the Chopin "Minute" waltz.

Highly popular with her auditors, Miss Betty Austin gave competently contrasted renditions of the sostenuto "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" from Hanled's "Theodora" and the delicate "I Dream of Jeannie" by Stephen Foster.

Miss Austin and Miss Johnston were particularly pleasing in their waltz duet "April Morn," heightening the effect of well blended voices by the ease of their stage manner.

Sings 'Morning,' 'Sylvia.'

The Glee club itself attained its greatest effectiveness in the two familiar Oley Speaks numbers "Morning" and "Sylvia" and in the well-loved "Lost Chord" of Sir Arthur Sullivan. Popular too was their singing of Deems Taylor's "Viking Song."

To Director Albert D. Arnold must go much credit for sound interpretation and good musical coloring. The accompaniments by Elizabeth Burneson, and by Mrs. Hall who was heard with the quartet during the second half of the program, were very well done, as were the incidental solos by Donald Kirkpatrick and Lawrence Chamberlain.

Who Will Take Over Greenland?

Uncle Sam Watches Icy Island as Denmark Falls to Nazis.

By JACK STINNETT
(AP Feature Writer)

WASHINGTON — News item: President Roosevelt expresses approval of people of the United States who show an interest in studying up on Greenland.

Reason: (Mostly capital conjecture) Greenland belongs to Denmark. The Germans take over Denmark. Greenland is in the western hemisphere . . . might be included in lands in which the United States would resist foreign invasion should the Monroe Doctrine be invoked.. Also some situation might develop similar to that in the Virgin islands in 1916 when the United States told the Danes they would be mighty smart to sell them to us for $25,000,000. The Danes thought so, too.

* * *

Okmulgee Has More Folks.

Greenland, an area of 827,275 square miles, would just about fit over the states of Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota . . . has a total population of 16,630, slightly less than the last official population of Okmulgee, Okla. Of these, 408 are Danes, the rest Eskimos and half-breeds.

The whole interior of Greenland is covered with ice, in some places a mile to a mile-and-a-half thick. Its western shore (the habitable area) is divided into two inspectorates. Godthaab is capital of the southern; Godhavn of the northern.

Julianshaab is its most southern town. From there it's only a seven-to-nine hour bomber flight to the coasts of Canada, northeastern United States, and Great Britain.

One of my sources says it has about 60 settlements; another says it has about 175. Take your pick.

The Danes and a few of the Eskimo high-mucky-mucks live in wooden houses. The rest in huts.

* * *

Flowers and Icebergs.

The whole of the island (if you can call a hunk of land like that an island) has two monthly newspapers. They are printed in Greenlandish, which is outlandish Eskimo.

The summers (but don't park your parka) last from April to September. Mostly, the whole summer is daylight. There are flowers then . . . lots of them . . . about 400 kinds.

With some of its better glaciers running from 25 to 50 miles across Greenland is the home of the icebergs that float down the Labrador current to worry skippers in the north Atlantic.

It's also the home of the auk. Ditto the eider (for eiderdown) ducks, seals, reindeer and snow-going jackrabbits. It also has a good share of the world's polar bears that are not in zoos.

* * *

Hunt, Fish, Pay Taxes.

Its principal industries are whaling, sealing, hunting, fishing, and mining cryolite in the mines at Ivigtut. Cryolite is an almost translucent mineral, among the by-products of which is aluminum.

The prices of everything in Greenland are fixed. One-sixth of the one-sale price of all outgoing products is taken for government. There's no other tax.

Umanak is the most northern settlement and one of the most northern in the world. Up there, in summer, the gardens grow radishes, broccoli, lettuce and sometimes turnips . . . but no parsley.

Unlike spots I could name, Greenland admits that its weather is always uncertain. Dense fogs blot out the sunshine while your back is turned. The rainstorms are hellbenders. And the blizzards . . . well, just Arctic.

The people are kindly, jovial, honest and intelligent. Crime is so close to unknown that there's not a policeman in the land. The only drunks are sailors who come on the boats that visit Greenland from May to November. The main social function is the kaffemik—coffee party. To the Greenlander, it's cocktails at the Ritz.

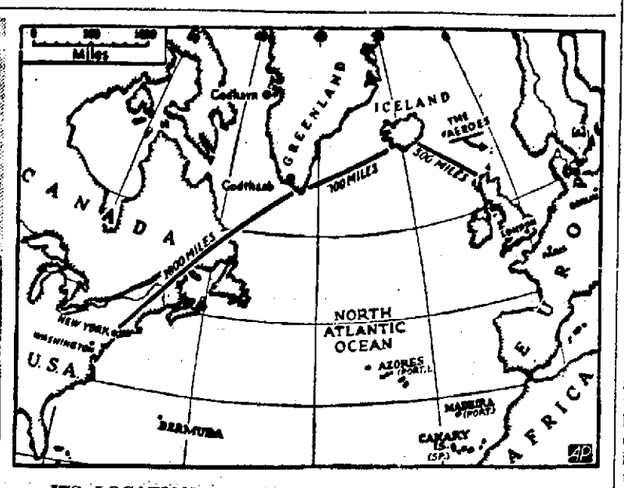
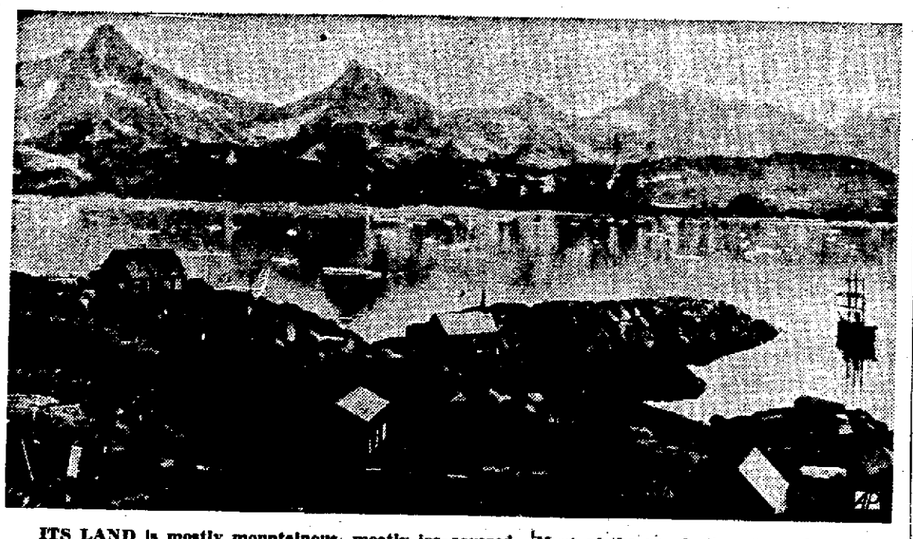
But if somebody doesn't send boats up there this summer, Greenland's population won't hold a blubber candle to Okmulgee's by 1941.

Its people number 16,630. Only 408 are Danes; rest are Eskimos. Most are literate. Here's what the ladies wear.



ITS LOCATION, and the occupation of Denmark by Germany, has raised question whether a European power may be tempted to use this Danish colony for a foothold in the western hemisphere.



ITS LAND is mostly mountainous, mostly ice-covered. Most of the people live along the southern coast. They raise sheep and cattle, make their own clothes, dig their own coal. Thirty radio stations help them keep in touch with Denmark.

GREEKS START OBSERVANCE OF EASTER WEEK

Special Religious Services Being Held at Orthodox Church; Student Speaks.

While Holy Week and Easter were observed by most Mansfielders a month ago, a small group of people in the city are celebrating the religious holiday this week.

The Greek Orthodox church, 207 North Main street, has a slightly different computation of time on the date of Easter, which brings the date several weeks later on every fourth year, according to Rev. Janos Gougoutas, pastor of the church.

Very frequently Holy Week of the Greek church falls on the same date as that of the Gregorian calendar which is used by most of the Christian world, but on the fourth year there is a difference which ranges from a few days to a month. On all other dates, such as Christmas and New Year, the dates are identical.

Services are being held every day this week at the Greek church. Starting today there will be morning services at 9:30 throughout the remainder of the week, as well as night services that start at 9:30 p. m. Rev. Gougoutas said that it was a Greek custom to start evening services at a late hour.

Thursday night Nick George Mavromatis, 17-year-old Senior high school boy, will deliver the sermon which will be on the crucifixion of Christ. This service is scheduled for 10 p. m.

The Good Friday night services are impressive and symbolical. The service is written around the last words of Christ and the church is decorated with flowers. There is a flower-decked symbolical tomb.

Saturday night the services start at midnight and extend through the first hours of the new Easter. At 3 p. m. Sunday the services revolve around the theme of the second visit to the vacant tomb when people came to see if the story were true that Christ had arisen.

Vendol Helped When Nothing Else Tried Seemed Able To

Salesman's Wife Had Suffered Long Time From Upset Stomach and Other Troubles Associated With Constipation Till She Luckily Tried Vendol.

Mrs. Emanuel M. Eby of 78 Vennum Ave., Mansfield, whose husband is the well known salesman for the Ohio Realty Co., told the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store the following experience:

"I guess anyone would become discouraged who suffered like I did when nothing tried brought relief. I was constipated all the time and this kept my stomach so upset that after eating I often felt nauseated, food would turn sour and fill me so full of gas that I'd feel uncomfortable for hours, sharp pains would shoot through my stomach, and often I'd rift up a hot, sour liquid that burned my throat and I'd often belch up little bits of food. At such times, I'd have awful headaches and feel nervous.

"I quit eating many things because they always disagreed with me, and this began to tell on me by making me feel weak, tired, and exhausted after my day's work.

"I had lost faith in medicines, but when I saw how many folks right here at home were praising Vendol, I couldn't help giving it a trial. And Vendol didn't disappoint me.

"The first few doses acted so nicely that I began to feel better, so kept taking it and I got the most wonderful relief from constipation; then those stomach upsets quit annoying me and I could eat anything I wanted, and now I never have any gas, bloating, cramps, or belching. My sleep is restful and I do my work with ease. Vendol is the only medicine I ever tried that gave this grand relief, so I'm glad to give it my recommendation."

MRS. EMANUEL M. EBY

$500,000 City-County WPA Project Given O. K.

JOBS FOR 300 MEN INCLUDED IN PROPOSALS

President Authorizes $374,983 Allocation; July 1 Set as Date to Begin Project.

A $500,000 WPA project for the construction of county roads and bridges and Mansfield and Shelby streets had been approved today by President Roosevelt who authorized a $374,983 allocation of federal funds for the work.

The project, due to get under way about July 1, will provide employment for from 200 to 300 men for more than a year, Deputy County Engineer Walter E. Rusk said.

The project will supplement a million-dollar county-wide WPA program due for completion about the last of June.

To share in the new project the county, Mansfield, and other subdivisions must provide approximately $125,000 in sponsors' funds, most of which will be used for the purchase of materials and to furnish equipment. The federal allocation is for labor.

Plans for the project call for the use of about 200 men on road construction throughout the county and about 60 on bridge jobs. The quota for street work in Mansfield and Shelby had not been set today.

Takes Up Slack.

Rusk said the project will absorb approximately 48 per cent of the eligible WPA workers in the county, now totaling slightly more than 700.

The villages of Butler and Bellville were included in the project plans, and county officials said they will be eligible to share the federal money for street and curb construction provided the villages furnish matching funds.

ASHLAND—Action for divorce has been filed here by Cecelia Kibbie against Lawrence Kibbie, in which the defendant is charged with wilful absence.

Pictures Portray Work of Salvation Army

One of the most important phases of Salvation Army work besides its relief and welfare work is its youth program. Young people are given opportunity to express themselves in play, sports and study. Picture No. 1 shows three younger children in kindergarten art class. They are, left to right, Helen Boubary, Gene Swevel and John Comer. Picture No. 2 is that of Paul Boubary, who is typical of the children trained at the Army classes. No. 3—Better than playing in the streets is this indoor playground at the Army hall where there are scooters and wagons and many other toys. The children shown here are, left to right, Emmett Lee Robertson, Christy Boubary, Norman Ackerman and Wava Jean Reed. No. 4—Among the older boys basketball is a favorite sport at the Salvation Army gym. Kneeling on the floor are LeRoy Dillion and at the right, Lieut. M. L. Cox, of the Army staff, who directs sports. At the rear, left to right, are Hobart Adams, Sam Briwn, Vincent Kennedy and Ralph Amore. No. 5—The class in instrumental music attracts all ages. Among the younger students is the class shown here, are front, John Comer and Donald Adams, and in the rear, from left to right, LeRoy Dillion, Hobart Adams, Sam Brown, Ted Troupe and Lieut. Cox.

Character Building, Welfare Work Tasks of Salvation Army

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth of a series of articles and pictures dealing with the nine agencies that make up the Mansfield Community Fund. A campaign to raise $57,500 for the support of these agencies for the ensuing year will open April 29.)

* * *

A lot of people have the idea that the Salvation Army caters only to the men and women who are down and out, whereas that phase of its work is incidental to its general program of character building, emergency relief and welfare work.

Its relief work provides food and temporary shelter for individuals and families who are stranded here, and aid in the city for "borderline" cases—those who are not relief cases but who need some supplementary aid.

Last year the Mansfield Salvation Army provided 1,539 free meals for needy persons, its total relief bill being $1,342, and its nights of free lodging including 250 persons.

The Army also provided many articles of clothing, furniture and shoes to needy families after having collected them from Mansfield homes.

When the WPA gave up conducting classes for blind people of the city and the county, the Salvation Army took up the work. One day each week the blind are gathered up by the Red Cross motor corps and taken to the Army hall where Army workers provide a full day of recreation and study, with a dinner served free at noon.

The Army is primarily a religious organization and is interdenominational. Its church services are open to any person in the city

In addition to its religious services and welfare activities the Army conducts a year-round character-building program for young people and adults. It conducts classes in arts and crafts, cooking, sewing, dramatics, athletics, singing and instrumental music. This program also includes youth forums for boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 25, to which young people from nearby towns are invited.

The Army offers a correspondence course supplemented with one study meeting a week. Gymnasium classes, indoor and outdoor sports, and a summer camp are included in the Army's service to young people.

During the past year 985 boys and girls were enrolled under the Army program, with a total attendance of 17,679 persons.

While the Army is affiliated with the national and international Salvation Army, it is governed by a board of Mansfield people. Its state and national dues are slightly over $1,000 but this sum does not come out of the allocation of funds from the Mansfield Community Fund.

It's expenses last year were $7,605, while it received only $5,318 from the Community Fund. Its staff of workers consists of Major David Brown, Mrs. Brown, Lieut. Cox, two part time workers and 25 volunteer workers, who serve without pay. The Salvation Army's allocation this year under the present budget will be $5,200.

ELECT POULSTON AS GOVERNOR OF ROTARY DISTRICT

Club Holds 2-Day Conference at Lima; Mansfielders Have Part in Program.

Election of Harry D. Poulston, president of the Lima Rotary club, as district governor, featured the opening session of the annual conference of the 157the district of Rotary International, being held in Lima today and tomorrow.

Poulston, who holds the classification of retail druggist in the Lima club, has a wide acquaintance among Mansfield Rotarians and elsewhere in the district, having been active in Rotary for a number of years. His name was placed in nomination by Alfred M. Colby, delegate from the Mansfield club, and his election was unopposed.

Takes Office In July.

After ratification at the convention of Rotary International, to be held in Havana, Cuba, June 9 to 14, Poulston will take office July 1, succeeding Charles N. Sutton, of Attica.

Martin Nellis, general chairman of the conference, presided at the morning session, at which welcome was extended by President Poulston, with response by G. J. Kochenderfer, president of the Mansfield club.

An address by Frank Phillips, of Ithaca, N. Y., vice president of Rotary International, featured today's luncheon meeting at Memorial hall. A luncheon meeting for wives of Rotarians was held at the Lima Country club, followed by an entertainment program this afternoon.

A youth forum this afternoon is being directed by Julius E. Bohn, of the Lima club, with W. L. Miller, superintendent of Mansfield public schools, participating in the discussion.

High spot in the conference is the governor's fellowship banquet tonight, with a reception and ball afterward.

JUDGE ORDERS YOUTH TO B. I. S.

Quarantine Keeps Boy From Research Bureau; Sentence to Lancaster Imposed.

A scarlet fever quarantine at the Juvenile Research bureau in Columbus today had resulted in a term in the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster for a 16-year-old Mansfield youth who otherwise probably would have got off with a short period of observation in the Columbus institution.

The youth, one of six involved in a series of burglaries in Mansfield in recent weeks, was ordered to the industrial school by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson who said the Juvenile Research would not accept him until the quarantine is lifted in about three weeks.

The boy has a record of delinquency that would warrant sending him to the industrial school anyway, Judge Anderson said. Since the youth was considered a "problem case," however, Judge Anderson said he had hoped to get him in the Juvenile Research for observation.

Two other boys, both 15, were sent to the industrial school last week for their part in the burglaries, and three boys were paroled by Judge Anderson.

The boys admitted the theft of articles valued at about $200 from Mansfield stores and homes. Most of it was recovered by police at the county children's home where the boy burglars had hidden it in lockers.

SHIPMENTS UP

Air Express Shipping Increases 33 Per Cent From City.

Air express shipments from Mansfield increased 33 per cent over the same month last year while the nation-wide gain for the month was only 25.5 per cent, Railway express officials announced today.

Gross revenue for the month throughout the nation was up 27 per cent and the shipments totaled 71,373, it was said.

Air shipments of express from Mansfield are made from Cleveland, Akron, or Columbus after being taken there by train.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 1940.

Shifting the "s" and "v' does it, for what's really needed is more conservation and less conversation.

If you're an amateur gambler you'd better lay off on trying to pick the winner at either of the national conventions this summer.

Claude Callan, in the Kansas City Times, suggests that a boy should finish school at an early age, so as not to be too old when he starts his education.

Continue Tax Stamp Redemption

EFFECTIVENESS of the redemption plan in increasing receipts from the retail sales tax can no longer be doubted and it is interesting to note that the plan was recently held constitutional in a case heard by Judge Edward C. Turner in the Franklin county common pleas court.

Richland county's increase in sales tax receipts during the first week in April, as noted in yesterday's News-Journal, reflects conditions over the state, as the first three months in 1940 show a gain of more than a million dollars in the collection of sales tax over the corresponding 1939 period. The amount collected in 1939 was more than six million dollars ahead of the 1938 collection. It is noted that total payments to organizations which redeemed tax stamps was only around 5% of the total increase in collection of the tax.

In holding redemption of sales tax stamps valid, Judge Turner said that it was within the jurisdiction of the legislature to determine ways and means of collecting the tax.

It is announced that redemption of tax stamps will be continued indefinitely and rumors to the effect that stamps will not be redeemed after May 1, or any other given date, are without foundation.

A number of Mansfield organizations are collecting sales tax stamps for various worthy causes and buyers of taxable merchandise are urged to make sure that they receive stamps with all such purchases.

Tragic Result of High Speed

WHILE public attention is being directed toward efforts to improve traffic conditions in Mansfield, with a committee earnestly at work gathering information in advance of making recommendations, such a tragedy as that which occurred near Slayton, Minn., a few nights ago should not be permitted to pass unnoted.

Here was an instance in which two light sedans, carrying 13 young people, crashed head-on while traveling at terrific speed (estimated at 80 miles an hour) and 11 of the boys and girls were instantly killed, with one other given slight chance to recover.

However much it may be contended that children should be privileged to drive automobiles, it has frequently been demonstrated that a certain percentage of youthful drivers is rashly impetuous and lacks a sense of danger which older persons are quite likely to develop through experience and observation.

In the Minnesota catastrophe the lives of eleven other young people, in addition to the drivers, were jeopardized by the frightful speed at which the cars were operated, and all seven of the occupants of one car were killed. Minnesota has a speed limit of 60 miles an hour for daytime driving on some stretches of highway, but this limit is reduced 10 miles an hour for night driving.

A recent announcement is to the effect that Edsel Ford is sponsoring a Good Drivers' League, for boys from 15 to 18 years of age, and will offer prizes for safe driving. It is his idea that promotion of safety among youthful drivers will also provide a good example for older persons.

Model Behavior for Hold-up

JUST what Emily Post might suggest as proper behavior in the case of an attempted hold-up of a women's apparel shop during business hours is not known, but, in the absence of authoritative information on the subject, the example of sang froid provided by Miss Mildred DeWitt, when she was confronted by a gunman in a local store a couple of days ago, may be permitted to stand as quite in accord with the etiquette of such occasions.

Realizing, of course, that the money which the youthful would-be robber demanded, at the point of a gun, belonged to the store and not to him, the young lady made no move to comply with his orders, in spite of his threat that he'd shoot.

Misleading, but probably warranted under the circumstances, was her observation, "Look out, here comes the boss"—which seems to have just popped out without any special planning. Nor did the routine seem to fit in with any picture of a hold-up that the young bandit had ever seen, so he became so flustered that he got out of there as fast as possible.

With the Richland county grand jury busy just now on cases resulting from apprehension of persons charged with similar offenses, it might appear that anyone contemplating a hold-up or other crime of violence would be well advised to give the matter careful thought before taking the chances involved.

Naval Problem In Pacific

THE Pacific Ocean may not be so much longer. The first breach of peace may come from shipment of war supplies.

According to a recent London dispatch, the government at Moscow has ordered its Pacific navy to convoy Russian freighters from American seaports to Vladivostock. They would presumably be ships sailing from our Pacific ports with copper and other vital war supplies, destined for Russia and ultimately for Germany.

The Russian warships would doubtless have a right to chaperon those freighters across the Pacific. And British warships would have a right to attack them on the way. That would be war in the ocean where we have hoped to preserve peace. It is probably inevitable, later if not now, as the war spreads.

Bright Future for Soybeans

WHAT has been done with the soybean thus far is only a scratch on the surface," says an authority. That "scratch" includes the use of soybean products as food for humans and animals, as an oil for various purposes—making soap, paint, etc—as a plastic with many uses, for production of synthetic wool, for brewing beer, in the manufacture of linoleum and oil cloth, printer's ink, insecticides, and so on.

While the soybean has not been literally "turned into gold," this is being done figuratively by rapid advances in industrial chemistry.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—One minute interview with Kay Kyser: "Don't ask me how it happened. Five years ago we were playing the same way we play today, tootin' the same horns, playin' the same towns, patronizing the same songwriters, but nobody seemed to care much. Nobody but us. Ask Ol' Sully Mason—he'll tell you. We were just another band. Then somehow, it happened. But don't ask me how, or why. It just happened and, well, here we are."

PERSONAL NOTE from a lady in Indiana: "Dear Mr. Tucker, everyone loves to see his name in print, and so I was surprised and pleased to find mine in one of your recent column chats. . . . You said you liked the name 'Mignon' for a girl. I expect a great number of future girl babies will be named that because their parents read it in your column. . . . I was named for a movie actress. Later an aunt told me that since it was a French word the feminine ending should be 'ne,' so I have been spelling it that way for years. . . . I have always considered it somewhat of a handicap. People can never spell, pronounce or remember it. Anyone delving into the definition finds it means dainty, petite, and other flatterings things. Since I have always been tall, skinny, and awkward it seems rather ludicrous. . . . Some people give it the French pronunciation of 'Meenyo.' The only other girl I know having the name pronounces it 'Ma-non.' Mother always gave it the English pronunciation as it is spelled, simply 'Mignon.' Sincerely, Mignonne (Mrs. Karl W.) Kilian."

THUMBNAIL REVIEW: Some plays should be enjoyed in a carnival manner; that is, when the clowns run up and down the aisles it will help you to enjoy the play if you hop on their backs and ride piggie-back. Others should be taken in stride. Musicals, or mysteries are gauged by their pace, their melodies, or their murders. But there is one play on Broadway, a newcomer, which should be seen in much the same mood that one reads a mystery story. Just sit back in your seat and let the story carry you along. The name of this play is "Suspect," and the star is Pauline Lord, whom I haven't seen since she played Nina in "Stange Interlude." She does something with an ax at the very moment the last curtain falls—and the audience is stunned. The curtain is half way up again, for the first curtain call, before the audience is out of its trance.

This one is on St. Pat: Erin O'Brien-Moore is an Irish actress with a fondness for Japanese Spaniels. She bought herself a new puppy recently, weighing several ounces when it arrived, and for three days thereafter she wrote down all the Japanese names she could think of, like "Pear Blossom," and "Cherry Twig," and things like that. After figuring out the ones she liked she had them translated into Japanese, just to see how they looked in print. "And I have to learn how to pronounce them," she added . . . last night I saw her leaving a broadcasting studio and asked her if she ever decided on a name.

"Sure," said Erin, Molly O'Rourke."

Words of the Wise

OUR BUSINESS IS WHAT WE MAKE IT

Listen, World!

Day-Dream Addicts.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DOUBT if there's a more vicious form of addiction than day-dreaming. Alcohol will rot your flesh, morphine will wither your brain—but day-dreaming will leech the fibre from your very soul.

Before we go further, get this straight. Day-dreaming is not to be confused with ambition. It is not a part of that slow mental weaving by which we create the design of our lives. It is definitely a fade-out—from real life . . . a runaway into glamorous and impossible realms. And as such it's a deadly menace to your character.

You look surprised. You like to day-dream, don't you? It's fun. Particularly when you're worried and blue. It helps you forget. A little pause, and then you're off . . . adrift in the Land of Maybe. And before you know it, everything's changed. All your problems have vanished—or been solved. You're beautiful, brilliant and beloved. Nobody's mean to you. Nobody expects you to do things you don't want to do . . . or criticize you if you fail. In short, it's an absolutely perfect universe and you're its prize package.

That's the way you feel about day-dreams, isn't it? And that—though you may not have realized it—is exactly the way the drunkard feels about his glass of whisky, or the addict feels about his shot in the arm. And for the best of reasons. They're all in the same class—Booze, Dope and Day-Dreams. They're all escapes . . . escapes from reality. Escapes from responsibility. Escapes from the most unpleasant job on earth—that of tackling life as it is and ourselves as we are.

What's wrong in escaping through a day-dream? Just this. You kid yourself into a condition where you get everything you want without the slightest effort on your own part. You may do this once—you may do this twice—but if you continue to do it, you'll become incapable of exerting effort when you come out of your dream. You'll resent every challenge and criticism. In short, you'll be too soft to take it, just as the drunkard and the addict are too soft to take the bettering of common existence.

"Should we then force ourselves to face constantly ugliness and depression?" Of course not. There are noble and legitimate escapes from the unprofitable dreariness of life. Beauty is such an escape, service to others . . . sturdy and healthy happiness.

The soul needs all of these to arm itself against life's tears and terror. Seek them for yourself in your own dark moments. But don't, if you value your future, take the dope of day-dreams and drug yourself into a coma.

Ohio Anecdotes

G. O. P. In Ohio.

FIRST organization of the Republican party in Ohio occurred July 13, 1855.

Arrangement for the convention grew out of a series of conferences between Whigs, anti-slavery people and the Know-Nothing party, with agreement hinging upon their mutual abhorrence of slavery.

Joshua R. Giddings called the convention to order. John Sherman, then but a young man, was named chairman. The name "Republican" then was first adopted as the coalition party's name. A similar coalition had taken place in neighboring states, but the term "Republican" had not been used.

A full state ticket was selected, and the nominees went on to win their various offices. Salmon P. Chase, an abolitionist, was chosen as the gubernatorial candidate. He defeated William Medill, his Democratic opponent.

The Happy Putterer.

Few things give more satisfaction to the ordinary, home-loving husband and father than the chance to do something around the house. He likes to boast to his neighbors that he, himself, strung the electric light wires to the garage, that these huge tomatoes came out of his garden; that the color scheme of the bathroom was his idea and that he painted every bit of it; that he takes care of his fresh, pretty, green lawn; that the roses are that way because he has put in many hours cultivating them; that he built his own workbench in the basement and so on, ad infinitum, as some of our intellectuals would say.

The reason for our hero's happiness is simple. By puttering he has created something, created something not only useful, but ornamental as well. His house, due to his efforts, is the most comfortable on the street. He has the pride of accomplishment, something that no man can do without. He is the kind of citizen who is the salt of the earth, the backbone of the community, the safeguard of America. He may be only a putterer, but more than that, he is a happy, contented, constructive, useful man.—Columbus Dispatch.

Health And Diet

Germ as Cause of Food Poisoning.

—By DR. CLENDENING

What is salmonella food poisoning?

Health authorities at the present time are of the opinion that most food poisoning is due to salmonella infection. It used to be called "ptomaine posioning," but this is an inaccurate term.

Salmonella is a germ which is particularly likely to infect food.

Probably a great deal of what has been called intestinal influenza this winter is due to salmonella poisoning.

Salmonella causes acute irritation of the stomach and intestinal tract, with nausea, vomiting, prostration and a slight temperature. According to M. J. Rosenau, the famous authority on hygiene in the United States, "Most instances of food poisoning are from food that is fingered and fussed over, inadequately processed or imperfectly preserved. There is little danger in fresh, clean food, whereas food that is prepared hours before it is eaten gives opportunity for the growth of bacteria. The chief offenders in food infection are meat, milk and mixtures containing these products."

In treatment, salmonella infection is self-limited and usually disappears after two or three days of liquid diet and the use of mild sedatives.

Are there any occupational hazards among photographers?

Nowadays photography is a highly individualistic art, and a great many different chemicals are used which have different possibilities of ill effects. No two large establishments use precisely the same chemicals. There is, therefore, no single occupational disease due to any single chemical or procedure which can be put down as a hazard for photographers.

Such things as the sulfates, for instance, diamidophenol sulfate, acids, sodium thiosulfate, borax and potassium bromide may cause eruptions on the skin and dermatitis, either from contact or from inhalation of these substances.

A great many chemicals used in photography also cause anemia and destruction of the red cells of the blood.

I am asked particularly about dizziness and loss of hearing and loss of smell. This combination of symptoms is not associated with any particular chemical used in photography, but benzine is used in mounting prints and in different kinds of cement, so photographers are exposed to evaporated benzine. In the case of suspicion, it would be well to investigate the fatiguability of the person who is ill; also make a careful blood count and find out what kind of mounting cement is used.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Allied diplomats, who momentarily expect Italy to enter the war, have figured out a definite clue to give them warning. It is the Italian luxury liner Rex. Obviously Mussolini does not want to lose her.

So if the Rex sails from Genoa on April 30, Italy will not enter the war for at least another two weeks. But if the Rex remains in port after the time of her scheduled sailing, then Mussolini will fight on the side of Hitler.

Note — Most significant kiss since Biblical days may have been given by an officer of the Rex when he bade good-bye to his New York sweetheart last week. Intelligence officers, who don't miss little things, reported that he bade her a final farewell.

* * *

Europe's Time Bomb.

A FLOOD of important diplomatic dispatches have been coming in from the Mediterranean—all of them discouraging.

Briefly summarized, it looks as if the dictators are ready to apply the squeeze to the Allies on several fronts—from Gibraltar to the Black Sea.

In Spain—Dictator Franco suddenly has come to life and is concentrating troops near Gibraltar, symbol of the might of the British Empire. All indications are that when the time is ripe (probably in concert with the other dictators) he will move onto the giant Rock.

In Albania—Dictator Mussolini has rushed large detachments of men and they are now feverishly building roads from the Adriatic to Macedonia. This would permit Italy to cut through to Salonika, and thereby block Greece from the rest of the world.

In Jugoslavia—Mussolini is reported ready to seize the Dalmatian coast, and help the Croats become independent of the Serbs. An "independent" Croatia under Italian "protection" is reported to be one of the bribes Hitler offered Mussolini.

In Rumania — Dictator Stalin long has been ready to pounce on Bessarabia, also Hungary on Transylvania and Germany on Rumanian oil wells.

This huge squeeze play is reported to be all set for Hitler to give the signal—presumably by the occupation of Holland or an attack on the Maginot Line.

Will You, Mr. President?

THE nation's smartest newspaper editors gathered at the White House last week, peppering Roosevelt with off-the-record questions.

But the biggest of all political questions they left unasked: "Will Roosevelt run for a third term?" Next day newspaper accounts said they asked it, but they didn't—probably because they figured Roosevelt was sure not to answer.

Undoubtedly they were right. However, it was paradoxical that those very, very close to the presidential desk last week got the most definite impression gained so far that the president is going to run.

* * *

Roosevelt's Valet.

MAYBE this one is a clue to the third term mystery:

A friend encountered Irvin McDuffie, cheery Negro valet of President Roosevelt, and inquired what he was doing.

"Oh, I'm not working for the president any more," he said. "I'm over in the treasury."

"In the treasury! What happened?"

"Nothing happened," replied McDuffie with a broad grin. "I just figured that with things as uncertain as they are I'd better get me a regular job while the getting was good. So that's why I'm over in the treasury. That's a lot more permanent."

* * *

Japanese War?

THE real author of Secretary Hull's "Keep Out of the Dutch East Indies" note to Japan was Stanley Hornbeck, for many years chief Far Eastern adviser of the state department.

Hornbeck is a former Harvard professor, has spent several years in China, and was appointed by Frank B. Kellogg. For ten years Hornbeck has been warning both Republican and Democratic secretaries of state that Japan was going on the rampage in China, and urging a firmer policy.

With Roosevelt and Hull he has made more progress than with Hoover and Coolidge, with the result that they have been figuring out ways and means of stopping what they figured to be the inevitable push of Japan toward the Dutch East Indies.

First move was when Roosevelt pulled the U. S. fleet back from the New York World's Fair when things looked black in Europe last summer. This was a gesture to Japan.

Second move was when he sent the fleet out to Hawaii from the California coast last autumn.

And the third move—sending the fleet farther out into the Pacific—has been secretly discussed for some time. In fact, Secretary Hull had a meeting with the admirals about two months ago in which they weighed the pros and cons of letting the fleet cruise around the probable path to be taken by the Japanese fleet should they decide to head for the Dutch East Indies.

In the end the admirals decided it was too dangerous.

* * *

May Mean War.

BUT—and this is important—the U. S. fleet is now 800 miles beyond Hawaii. It is on maneuvers, and obviously will not remain there long. But it is not without significance that the president chose this particular time, when Germany was pressuring Holland, to stage these mid-Pacific maneuvers.

Also it is not without significance that he sent out the fleet just at the exact time he warned Japan to keep out of the Dutch East Indies.

Note—The Hull warning to Japan is subject to various interpretations, but the interpretation given it by established usage is that if Japan does not heed the warning, it means war. Nations do not usually stick their necks out to tell another nation what to do, without the risk of war.

So you can write it down as certain that if the United States gets into war, it will be through the back door of the Pacific.

DAVE INGALLS, Taft campaign manager and cousin, is very superstitious. He always knocks wood when expressing a hope and he will never enter a room in which there are thirteen persons. . . . Representative Frank Havenner of San Francisco still has the habit he acquired as a newsman for many years. When he has a speech or an important letter to write, he bangs it out himself on a typewriter next to his desk.

Workman's Tools

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE FARM I mean is just an average 160 acres, with hill and bottom, a big bank barn and a rambling old-time dwelling. But I always enjoy driving by the place for it bears an atmosphere of thrift and individuality that is a contribution to the neighborhood.

The buildings are neatly painted and surroundings are clean of weeds and rubbish. The other day I found the farmer in his tool shed, where he had his farm machinery stored in the order he would use it. The plow, disk, cultipacker and corn planter were toward the front. He was bolting a new point on his well-oiled plow.

"It's a backward spring," he said, when he greeted me. "I've only drawn a few furrows yet, but there ain't many years that a man can't get all his work done, if he's on the job. I always pull my plows and tools in where it's dry and then I can fix them on the days it rains."

"I notice some farmers leave their tools right where they stop using them," said I. "In one place I saw a hayrake, a cultivator and a mowing machine along the same fence."

"I know a man," said he, smiling, "who always pulls his tools under an oak tree beside his barn and never gets time to put 'em in."

"Your tools look like new," I remarked.

"I've used this plow for 16 years—the wagon is 10 years old, the binder six and I bought the cultipacker five years ago. Every two years I paint 'em up. I don't like to ride on a rusty seat, myself. It's hard on my pants. I always feel, after I've owned something, that it's a part of me. Franklin had it right—'rust consumes faster than labor wears. It's better to wear out than to 'rust out.' Leaving things out 'in the big shed' has bankrupted more farmers than all the high prices of farm machinery."

"A workman is known by his tools—" I mused. "Do you think a farmer who cares for his tools will neglect his wife or fail to provide for his family?"

"She ain't left me yet — it'll soon be thirty years," he said with a twinkle in his eye. "Anyhow, I can't stand to hear bearings hollerin' for grease, or see woodwork rottin' off for the lack of a little care."

Italy Demands Complete Liberty In Mediterranean

ALLIES GIVEN PEACE TERMS BY MUSSOLINI

Halting of British Blockade Tactics Immediate Aim of Mussolini.

(By International News Service)

ROME—Italy's "essential terms" for preserving peace in the Mediterranean were outlined by an unimpeachable authority today—presumably in the same form that they have been presented to Great Britain and France.

In brief, they mean complete liberation of Italy as "prisoner of the Mediterranean."

But an even more immediate demand is cessation of "hectoring" British blockade tactics in what Premier Mussolini has always termed "Mare Nostrum" (our sea).

Further than this, the long-range Italian program calls for demilitarization of British and French bases at Malta, Corsica and Bizerte (Tunis), and possibly Suez, Cyprus and Gibraltar as well.

There is naturally no hint as to how these demands have been received, although yesterday a high authority said that some "constructive" alteration in Anglo-French-Italian relations could be anticipated in the near future.

Danger Spot.

"Security and liberty for Italy in the Mediterranean" is the core and kernel of the Italian thesis. Until it is achieved, this country will remain a European danger spot, and while no renunciation of his present non-belligerency is looked for, Premier Mussolini must continue to be regarded as a soldier at war for his rights in the meantime.

The war cannot end and peace cannot be restored unless Italy is unshackled from the "slavery" of her own sea, and until "pistols pointed at her heart" are laid down for all time, my informant declared.

Lose Patience.

There are unmistakable signs that highest Italian authorities are losing patience with Britain's "wanton intimidation" of Italian shipping. The blockade has become so intensified, a spokesman said, that British warships not only have stopped traffic in cotton and oil but also have impeded such manifestly innocent and essential cargoes as dried grapes, eggs and even pepper from Turkey.

In a private address to the Fascist hierarchy at Venezia palace last night, Il Duce is reported to have referred with scorn and indignation to this British high-handedness.

A situation permitting British warships to hover on the fringes of Italian territorial waters and acting as though the Straits of Messina and Otranto are "appendages of the English channel" is intolerable, the spokesman said.

If Italy's prior rights are assumed and definite proof given that Britain and France will alter their present attitude and give this country its due, Italy is ready, willing and prepared to ensure that the imperial life lines of both the Allies across the Mediterranean are guarded and ensured for all time, my informant said.

SEEK BUILDING PLAN APPROVAL

NYA Building at Ashland Fair Grounds Awaits Decision of Columbus Office.

ASHLAND — Word was received today from Gessner A. Brown, area supervisor, National Youth administration, that plans for a NYA construction project at the Ashland county fair grounds are pending approval at the Columbus office.

This is the first construction project to be undertaken by the NYA in Ashland county in cooperation with a public agency. The Ashland County Fair board is sponsor of this project.

Raymond E. Burris, area works project supervisor, and from Ashland, has been instrumental in developing the project for Ashland county. It is set up to employ 40 male youths, all to be from Ashland county, for a period of three months.

Those who extended efforts in securing the NYA to open a project are James S. Atterholt, secretary of the fair board; Arthur E. Crone, superintendent of the board building committee, and Cloyd B. Kline, president of the Ashland Agricultural society.

PROBE OF IMMORALITY LIKELY AT GIRLS INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Possibility of a personnel shakup at the Delaware girls' industrial school was indicated by Herbert R. Mooney, assistant state welfare director today as he disclosed receipt of two affidavits "dealing with immorality" at the institution.

"If these things are true, there certainly should be something done about it," Mooney asserted.

Another welfare department source said "some reports" of immorality and degeneracy at the school had been substantiated by two state investigators now preparing a report.

Mooney said complaints about the institution had been received "for several months," but he declined to divulge specific cases. He withheld the affidavits on grounds that he "wanted to protect" a former inmate who signed one of them.

Mooney said he had received no report from Mrs. Rose Beatty, school superintendent, but added he probably would go to Delaware to discuss the situation with her.

'SINCERE PRAISE' RELEASES 'HIDDEN POWERS,' SPEAKER SAYS

If more husbands and wives surprised each other with unexpected praise yesterday, it was because of the suggestion given in the afternoon by Mrs. Jessie Burrall Eubank, who is conducting a seminar in creative living at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

"A word of sincere praise will do more to release another's initiative and hidden powers than anything else," said the speaker, Mrs. Eubank explained. "One acknowledged success will wipe out all failures."

In discussing "The Faith That Achieves," Mrs. Eubank, who was formerly professor of religion at Stephens college and at the University of Missouri, said, "Faith is the expectation of success." Clara Belle Merryman presented this principal topic of the seminar when members of the Mansfield Baptist association were guests.

Mrs. Eubank discussed "1940 Answers to Prayer" this afternoon and today at 7:30 p. m. she will speak on home-life at a meeting to which all church school workers of Mansfield and area are invited.

A covered-dish supper for church school teachers and workers will be held at 6:30 p. m. As chairman of the department of religion in the home of the Council of United Church Women of America, Mrs. Eubank has addressed the national convention of Parent-Teacher associations, the National Education association and the biennial convention of Federated Women's clubs.

The seminar will conclude with Thursday's sessions at 2 p. m. and at 7:30 p. m.

SEAMAN TELLS OF BATTLE HE SAW AT NARVIK

Declares Nazis Used Machine Guns on Norse Sailors Struggling in Water.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM — An American merchant seaman who was at Narvik when the Germans invaded Norway told today what he had seen and heard.

He asserted that of a party of 600 Germans sent across the Swedish frontier before he crossed last Sunday some were navy men from sunken German warships, disguised in civilian clothes.

The seaman, Patrick King, Baltimore, was aboard a Finnish ship which put in at Narvik April 1. King was sent to hospital at once, suffering with a stomach ailment. Two days after he was released from hospital the Germans arrived.

King's story follows:

"I was in a seamen's home when the sound of firing woke me. I jumped into my clothes, ran to a window overlooking the shore of the harbor, and saw the Norwegian battleship Norge (coast defense ship) fire a warning shot across the bows of a German warship.

"The German warship retaliated with four torpedoes, three of which struck the Norge amidships. She capsized.

"Several hundred men of the Norge were soon swimming in the ice cold harbor, howling for help. The Germans opened machine gun fire on them. Several were rescued by the Dutch ship Bernisse, which was also under fire.

"Another Norwegian warship, the Eidsvold (sister ship of the Norge) was sunk in the same way. German officers went in a launch and boarded the Eidsvold and asked the captain to surrender. When he refused, the Germans returned in their launch and opened fire. Right away a torpedo or torpedoes hit the Eidsvold and she went right down without a peep in two minutes.

"Several Norwegian sailors swam to German and British merchantmen, and were rescued, hauled aboard and brought ashore and sent to the seamen's home.

"When I returned to the seamen's home several wounded Germans were there already. I helped them get their clothes off. Several were crying for their mothers. All were young boys between the ages of 16 and 18 at most.

"Thursday (April 11) was very quiet except for some Royal Air Force bombings. The British flyers took care not to bomb civilians, and they paralyzed the gun turrets of one German destroyer lying at the ore docks. No casualties were suffered.

"Saturday morning about 11:30 a. m. we heard a great rumbling which seemed to come from a distance. My pals and I were in a shack up on the hill. At the time there were four German destroyers lying in harbor and two submarines. Immediately on hearing the bombardment two of the German ships left the harbor and the submarines backed away from the dock and submerged.

"I moved my position uphill with a school teacher who happened to be a refugee and through glasses we witnessed the battle.

"The Germans opened fire on the British ships which retaliated immediately and sank three German destroyers. These were all the ships I actually saw go down as the battle shifted to other waters.

"The British suffered no losses. The only warship disabled for the British which I could see was a destroyer which was rammed by one of the ships due to the fact that she had her steering gear paralyzed."

IMPOSES FINE IN WAGE CASE

Judge Fines Firm $50, Quashes Charge of Working Employes More Than Maximum.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch imposed a fine of $50 and costs on the Peter Pan cleaners for failing to keep accurate records of employes' wages and hours when he found the firm guilty yesterday of violating the state wages and hour law.

The company and it's manager, Viola Gills, were cited last week on charges of paying women workers $14 a week in violation of the state minimum wage act, and with failure to keep daily records of each workers' time and earnings.

The charges of violating the minimum wage act was dismissed when the prosecution failed to prove that women employes had worked more than the maximum allowed by law.

The company produced payroll records to show that employes had not worked 52 hours during a week as had been charged.

Judge Kalbfleisch held that the company was responsible for keeping a daily record of the number of hours worked by its employes, ruling that the firm's records were not accurate.

NORSE-ALLIES RETREAT FROM NAZI ATTACKS

Major Victory at Steinkjer Claimed by Germans; Press Offensive.

British-Norwegian forces driven out.

The Allied forces were said to have retired about six miles north and east of Steinkjer where strong defenses were said to have been thrown up against further German attack No civilians were reported to have been casualties in the Steinkjer battle as the town's 6,000 inhabitants previously had been evacuated to the mountains.

Less Pressure.

South of Trondheim, according to reports here, the Germans have not put on much pressure Their line was said to be at Melhus, about 20 miles south of Trondheim. Allied troops from Bombaas have reinforced the Norwegian detachments south of Trondheim.

It appeared that the Germans were placing main reliance on their columns breaking through the Lillehammer region to aid them at Trondheim.

The belief here was that two large-scale battles will be fought soon—one in the Steinkjer area and the other around Lillehammer—on which the fate of the first phases of the Norwegian campaign may rest.

The town of Steinkjer, north of Trondheim, was virtually destroyed by the German bombardment and attack, according to the Allehanda dispatch.

The German forces attacking Steinkjer were believed to have moved northward from Trondheim while other German forces were moved into the Steinkjer zone by warships, which presumably carried out the bombardment.

Narrows Taken.

(In Berlin, the high command communique said the the Narrows of Steinkjer had been taken by German forces after a short battle.)

After the naval bombardment, the Allehanda dispatch said, German infantry stormed the town and drove out the British and Norwegian forces, which reportedly retired in good order

The British forces previously had been landed at Namsos, north of Steinkjer. The Namsos port since has been attacked by many waves of German bombing planes and was reported by the Nazis to be in ruins.

Frontier dispatches described the Steinkjer fighting as extremely bitter and indicated that the German attack had occurred during the night, resulting in complete domination of the town by the German forces.

Not Complete.

Allehanda's dispatch from the frontier said that the German victory at Steinkjer should not be interpreted to mean a complete triumph in the Trondheim district, as the Allied and Norwegian troops have their strongest position six miles north of Steinkjer and apparently retreated to that sector.

Telephonic advices to the United Press from Roeros said that British reinforcements were arriving in the Lillehammer sector despite terrific German bombardment of communication lines from Andalsnes, where the Allies landed.

The newspaper Aftonbladet reported from Norwegian military headquarters that important operations were in progress in the Guddrands valley and that it was believed about 17,000 Norwegian and British forces would soon be in action in the Lillehammer sector.

The German army forces, however, were described as pushing forward with great speed.

Daring Dash.

It was reported that a daring German motorized unit had made a dash northward along the Elverum-Trondheim road and had reached the town of Loesset, south of Koppang, which is 30 miles north of Rena. It was said, however, that strategic positions in the area were still held by Norwegians.

A German vanguard moving south from Trondheim was reported to have reached the village of Melhus, slightly north of Landamo, which is 30 miles south of Trondheim.

The situation remained confused because of the liquidity of present troop movements on both sides, but it was asserted in reports reaching here that traffic on the railroad between Molde, an Allied landing base southwest of Trondheim, and Bombass, a junction point between Molde and Lillehammer, remained open to Allied traffic, as did a branch leading northward toward Stoeren, 30 miles south of Trondheim.

It was reported that German troops from the Trondheim area were advancing along the Guadalen valley trying to reach Roeros, 60 miles southeast of Trondheim and 20 miles from the Swedish frontier

Reports generally insisted that Norwegian resistance on the front between Elverum and Rendal had strengthened and that the main German body from the south was making little if any real progress for the present

Norwegians continued to blow up bridges in an attempt to slow the German mechanized units while they build a strong defense line, it was reported.

Hore-Belisha Weds

Leslie Hore-Belisha, who was dropped as British war minister last January, and Madame Jacqueline Delubac, above, are married at Cannes, France. Mme. Delubac was the third wife of Sacha Guitry, French playwright and actor, until their divorce a year ago.

Await Report on Naval Battle Outcome.

STOCKHOLM —(AP)— Outbreaks of guerrilla fighting around Oslo were reported today to be handicapping the German invaders of Norway behind the lines.

Swedish newspaper correspondents said the rattle of machine-gun fire had been heard frequently in Oslo suburbs in the last few days as Norwegian irregulars, defying an edict providing the death penalty for possession of weapons, harassed the Germans with hit-and-run tactics.

The principal topic of conversation in Sweden, meanwhile, was furnished by mounting evidence that a naval engagement —possibly of major proportions —had been fought yesterday in the Skagerrak.

Yugoslavian Army Reported Mobilizing.

LONDON—(INS)—In a dispatch from Belgrade, the London Evening Standard today reported secret partial mobilization of the Yugoslavian army.

Three divisions were reported to have been sent to southern Serbia and Montenegro to counter a possible Italian drive through Albania, the dispatch said.

Plans have been completed for the evacuation of children from Belgrade, while the United States consulates there and at Zagreb have advised all nationals to leave, according to the Standard.

Declare British Killed Own Consul.

BERLIN —(U P)— An authorized German source said today: "According to our information the British consul at Narvik was killed by the British bombardment of Narvik last Friday or Saturday."

INDICT FORMER DETROIT MAYOR

Grand Jury Also Charges Manager of Joe Louis in Policy Racket.

operation of policy business within the city of Detroit.

Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox was indicted in the second group and, like McCrea, is awaiting trial. Both face ouster proceedings in addition.

The grand jury gave no indication of alleged amount paid for protection of policy in Detroit, but testimony produced in preliminary hearings in two previous cases has shown that tribute aggregating more than $600,000 was levied on gamblers and racketeers and paid to county and city officials.

Protection Price.

Estimates were that protection payments in the present case would raise the total to nearly $1,000,000 in the investigations.

Mayor Reading went out of office last Jan 1 after one two-year term. He was defeated for re-election by Edward J. Jeffries.

One of the lieutenants named was John P. McCarthy, one of the police officials involved in developments which led to creation of the grand jury. He was named in a suicide note left by Mrs. Janet MacDonald as a payoff man operating with her sweetheart, William McBride.

The former police superintendent named was Fred W Frahm, who was removed from office and is awaiting trial as one of the defendants in the baseball pool indictment.

Roxborough's name often has been linked with policy operations in Detroit. In May, 1929, Roxborough was "kidnaped" and robbed by three men. Charges against three suspects were dropped when Roxborough failed to identify them, and the police "black-hand" squad said it believed the "kidnaping" was an effort to force Roxborough to pay a ransom because he reputedly was becoming wealthy through policy operation.

JAPS RALLY

Claim Chinese Repulsed After Their Biggest Success.

PEIPING — (U P) — Japanese army spokesman today said Chinese forces have been driven back after "their most successful attack" since the Japanese occupation of Kaifeng, important railway center and capital of Honan province.

More than 2,000 Chinese troops, attacking the city from three directions, forced their way in yesterday but were forced to retreat after a ten-hour battle, leaving 150 dead, it was claimed.

Japanese troops, according to army spokesmen, were now pursuing retreating Chinese forces, which had heavily shelled Kaifeng, killing five Japanese soldiers and some Japanese civilians installation in the business district as a means of eliminating overtime parking, the replies split slightly in favor with 90 persons voting "yes" and 82 against.

The opinion was expressed here that foreign missionaries were safe.

The elimination of through traffic in the business district and restriction of truck deliveries on downtown streets also ranked high on the list of favorable changes proposed in the present traffic code.

Limiting truck deliveries in the business district to afternoons only was favored by 143 persons and opposed by only eight. By-passing of through truck traffic around the city was favored 133 to 22.

On the question of whether an examination should be held for prospective motor car operators before a driver's license is issued, 162 replied to the affirmative and seven voted "no."

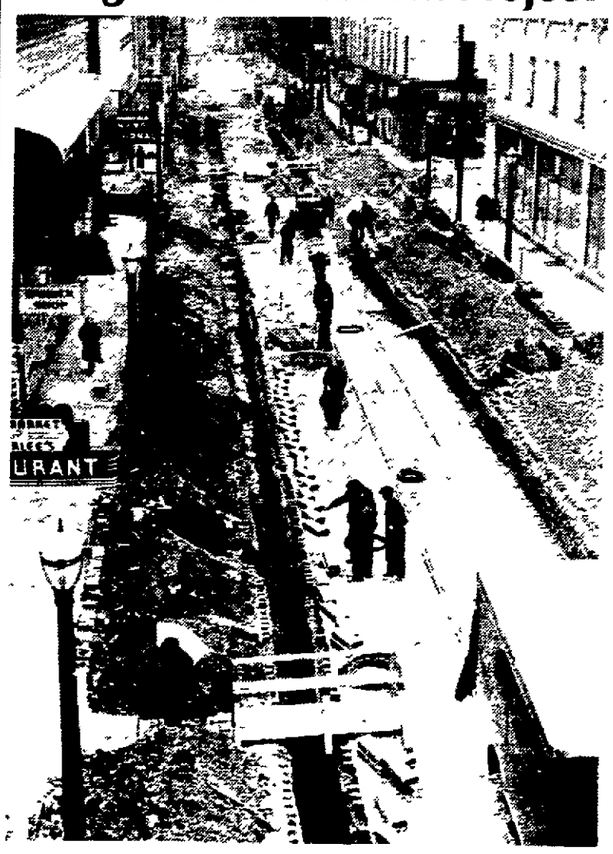
One hundred forty-five persons favored the compulsory inspection of automobiles as compared with 19 who opposed such a proposal.

The largest majority of the persons answering the questionnaires —91—said they were annoyed most while driving by being unable to find a place to park. Seventy-six said they were bothered mostly by glaring headlights and 75 listed the driver that "cuts in and out" as the chief annoyance.

A total of 47 persons said they parked from 45 minutes to one hour when they came downtown; 40 said two hours; 28 parked less than half an hour; seven from half an hour to 45 minutes, and eight said they parked longer than two hours.

Suggestions added to those listed by the chamber revealed that Mansfield drivers complained most severely about the synchronization of traffic lights in the business district, principally around Central park, and urged that they be arranged to speed up traffic movement.

Progress on West 4th Project



Here's a bird's eye view of the work being done on West Fourth street—taken when it wasn't raining — showing the reason intersections between Main and North Mulberry streets have been closed. The trench on the far side has been dug for a new water line while the one nearest to the camera is for conduit being put down for fire and police signal lines. This work is being done preliminary to the resurfacing job to be done by the state highway department this summer. City Engineer W. C. Statler said today North Walnut street will be opened to through traffic today. North Mulberry street intersection was shut off yesterday for the rest of the week. It is hoped to have the street open by next Monday.

"Shady Gardens" was the subject which Mrs. Harry Armstrong discussed. The group is planning to have a picnic at Mohican State park on May 17.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas blouts up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10c and 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

THESE next few weeks are the ones when home becomes nothing more than a house with all the furniture setting about at odd angles, rolled up rugs and gaping, uncurtained windows. . . . That's right, it's housecleaning time, and a general state of hubbub is upon us. . . . So while you're transforming your home into a spotless place, don't let your poor hands suffer. . . . The downtown stores are showing some very good rubber gloves for just such protection now. . . . One style that can be worn with ease for all kinds of work features a fleece lining—No, they're not warm and their advantage over other rubber gloves is that the fleece absorbs the perspiration from your hands. . . . When it comes time for you to use cleaning fluids, you'll be more than thankful to slip on gloves and spare your hands—And there are gloves now which can be used in any kind of liquid, no matter how strong, because they're not made of rubber, but from a composition combining limestone, coal and salt.

* * * * *

And when you finish cleaning, you'll be sure to want a new shade of nailpolish to add to the beauty of your pretty, protected hands.... Three special shades for spring are "Whimsey," "Hot Pink" and "Spring Fever." . . . The first is soft, pale pink, while the second has the rosy, red tone of a well ripened watermelon, and the latter is a bright, true red color.

* * *

While you're dressing up your hands, you mustn't overlook your face. . . . The new "Nite and Day" foundation lotion will bring radiance and new beauty to your complexion almost like magic. . . . It is ideal because it covers blemishes and lets your rouge and powder blend smoothly, clinging for hours. . . . Available in four flattering shades, this lotion can be used with equally good results on dry, normal or oily skin. . . . Cameo is for light complexions, Velvet Pink for medium ones, Desert Sand for dark and sun tanned skins, and Evening Glo for wear when the lights are soft and low.

* * *

WITH this fine foundation, you'll want to have just the right make-up. . . . And nothing could be nicer for spring and summer wear than an "Air-Spun" ensemble. . . . Made by a famous manufacturer of perfume and powder, these matched make-up accessories of powder, rouge and lipstick will give your face a color-perfect look. . . . Ensembles can be purchased scented with the favorite perfumes of this line—"L'Origan," "L'Aimant," "Emeraude" and "Paris." . . . Oh yes, and when you buy a box of the powder, you receive, as a gift, a clever purse gadget containing rouge and lipstick in harmonizing shades.

* * *

If you're looking for something to keep your figure trim and streamlined, you'll find the answer in one of the very new "living" girdles. . . . Made of liquid latex, these garments come in many sizes, and one of the most important features is that they have no seams to bulge 'neath the most fitted dresses. . . . They're called "living" because you can participate in the most strenuous sport or sit sedately at a lecture with equal ease and enjoyment while wearing one. These girdles come in pink, blue and white, and can be washed off with warm soap suds and patted dry with a towel in the twinkling of an eye.

* * *

MARTHA SLEEPER, Hollywood actress, has designed some of the cutest lapel gadgets ever. . . . They're grasshoppers, bumble bees, spiders, beetles and lady bugs, made of a combination of bright colored leather, braid and pipe cleaners—with wings of cellophane and feather antennae.

* * *

AND IN CONCLUSION: The smartest necklaces for summer wear are those new ones called "spun sugar." It's really glistening hemp they're made of, but it does look more like spun sugar. . . . These necklaces can be purchased in double strands of one shade, such as red, blue, white, coral, pink or combinations of the two colors—either knotted or plain—And the newest things in handkerchiefs are those silhouette ones which feature bright colored figures or profiles on contrasting backgrounds, also in gay colors.

Now that was a gratifying compliment which SMUCKER'S Old Fashioned Cider Apple Butter humbly accepted. And deserved.

Started Business On Shoestring

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Two or three weeks ago a correspondent, confronted by a dreadful alternative, wrote to this column for eleventh-hour suggestions.

Well-educated, but forced to earn her living as a char-woman, she found it impossible to properly care for her children. A woman, well placed socially, offered to take them if the mother agreed not to see them in the future.

Readers of this column who have managed "to knock a living out of life on practically nothing" as one of them put it to me, have offered such valuable suggestions for starting a business on little or no capital that it seems well worth while to give their experiences.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Several times I have been asked to write an account of how I started my successful florist business on a shoestring. Not until I read the account in your column of a mother forced to give up her children for adoption, because she couldn't care for them, have I considered doing this.

"I've just been too busy, but once I was desperate, with children to care for and positively no money. I thought of everything. Finally this plan came to me. I visited several clergymen and asked if among their parishioners there was one who would let me have the use of a plot of ground on which to raise flowers. I had always had what is known as 'the growing hand.' And as my chief talent, I determined to see what it would do for us.

"A good many of these gentlemen were decidedly bored with my suggestion. I found much that could not be labeled 'Christian charity.' Finally, one good old man seemed to take an interest in our case. (We were on relief at the time.) He persuaded a parishioner with a place in the suburbs to let me have a half acre plot.

"My older son plowed the ground with a hand plow which he borrowed. The clergyman actually advanced fifteen dollars for fertilizer—I used a commercial manure. I sold my mother's breastpin and bought flower seeds and bulbs, deciding on perennials rather than annuals, with a few exceptions, such as gladioli bulbs which are easy to grow and have a ready market.

"We started to work, my two boys and I (they were 13 and 15 years of age) as soon as frost was out of the ground, around the first of April in our part of the country. We watered, weeded, transplanting as soon as the young plants showed a few leaves. During this time we could often have enjoyed second helpings at the table if we had them. Still our courage remained high as the little plants grew.

"Fortunately, our borrowed plot of ground was at a bus intersection, and I was out with my flower basket every morning. More girls than men bought flowers. I suppose they liked them for their desks. And here's a tip: Never sell flowers with a sorrowful expression. Sell flowers happily. That was the beginning of our business which now owns two greenhouses.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Where are all the others?" I asked Dicky when he, Lillian and I were on our way upstairs again, for we had seen no member of the family in evidence since our return.

"Cow-er-r--r-ing in their respective rooms," Dicky answered with a grin. "Dad told me to put the fear of God into 'em, and I did, all but Katrina. She refused to be cowed, said she'd keep the kids inside under lock and key, and that she'd have to look after Ede because Miss Whitlock was busy with Dad. But I guess Ede is still sleeping her fool head off, so Katrina's incommunicado, too."

"You sure did a good job, Dickybird," Lillian commended.

"We try to give our best to our public," Dicky declaimed, and then we were at my father's door, and Miss Whitlock's voice was saying "Come in."

"If you're ready," my father said briskly when we neared the table, "suppose we get to work."

"I locked up the papers, Father," I said, "when we went down to dinner, but I won't be a second getting them."

"My fault, Dad," I heard Dicky say as I hurried out of the door. "I rushed them up here so fast they had no time to think of papers."

Once clear of the room, I rushed down the hall to Lillian's room, retrieved Miss Carman's maps and files and our own map of the attic from their hiding place and was back so quickly that my father looked at me with anxiety and disapproval.

"You've been running!" he said accusingly.

"Guilty as charged, your Honor," I answered smiling, "but I think you'll find that these are worth a race."

I opened the bundles and spread out the maps and files before him, putting uppermost the map of the exit, stairs and tunnel from our own attic, and the rough map of the inside of the attic which Lillian and I had made just before we left for Miss Carman's home. My father bent over them closely, tracing the lines with experienced fingers, while we watched him with intent interest.

"If these lines and your computations are correct," he said at last with a composure that I guessed was forced, "this entrance to the stairs and tunnel must be in the chimney breast on the west side of the old attic."

"There's just one way to settle that, Chief," Lillian said with sparkling eyes, "and that is to go up in the attic and find out."

BEGGING RACKET

LONDON—(U.P.)—Aliens in the United Kingdom have found a new war racket. Organized gangs of refugee beggars, sheltering behind tales of Nazi persecution, are becoming a menace to office and flat dwellers in London.

The few oddments they carry for sale make them immune from the law, as they cannot be charged with begging, and to all who will listen they tell harrowing tales of starvation and brutality.

FETED.

Mary Fuhrer was honored with a dinner and handkerchief shower Sunday in celebration of her birthday by a group of 25 friends at her home near Lexington.

STEW CURE FOR METALLIC DIET

He appeared one day and startled East Liverpool residents by publicly eating one watch, one penknife, several safety razor blades and a number of cartridges from the belt of Patrolman Robert Borger.

He was jailed on an intoxication charge, but was later released after telling police "some stew and vegetables will fix me up."

GROW YOUR OWN SHALLOTS

Shallots, so popular in England, are also growing in popularity in this country. Nowadays one often sees them mentioned in recipes and listed upon menus. Since shallots are milder in taste than their cousins, the onion, many people would use them if they knew they could grow their own.

In England, the shallot bulbs are planted by merely pushing them into the soil to half their depth. In this country most people plant them in drills 2 inches deep in the same manner that onion sets are planted.

When the tops wither the shallots are mature and should be dug up. Allow them to dry in the sun before storing.

Let Child Select Occupation

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

"What are you going to make out of him?" I once heard a man ask my father. I was the him. I must have been about 12 then.

"I don't think he'll make much of a farmer," I remember hearing my father say. But I don't recall that he gave a positive answer and I'm glad to say he never tried to dictate the vocational choices of his children. But he did try to encourage us in the respective fields we chose.

I must have been about 15 when I made up my mind to be a teacher. But the only teachers I had ever known were those who taught in the ungraded country school. I recall the thrill I had when I made up my mind that "I can be a teacher." This feeling lasted for hours that day and recurred repeatedly for days and days. I was dragging brush which had been pruned from the apple trees in the orchard behind the house into a big heap and burning them. As the blaze leaped high it seemed to symbolize the glow I felt within me. I began teaching the next year and, except for the years attending college and university, have been teaching since. I wonder what might have been my experience if my father and mother had told me I had to become a butcher, doctor or engineer.

Are Commanded.

A great many youths have told or written me of their grief over being commanded by their parents not to prepare for a vocation they have had their hearts set upon, or to prepare for one they despise. A certain high school senior told me amid tears, for example, that she had long wished to enter the nursing profession but that her parents forbade her doing so, telling her she must enter the teaching field. "I hate the thought of teaching," she said. That girl had my sympathy and I also felt concern for the children she might teach.

Then many a parent insists that his child must enter one of the professions when none may have any appeal to this child, even if he has the necessary brains and educational preparation. If, as often happens, the child lacks in mental aptitude, his efforts at entering a profession will mean inevitable sorrow and disappointment.

Some Get Guidance.

Fortunately, in the best high schools the child who lags in such subjects as science, mathematics or a foreign language is guided into courses he might succeed in but which would not suffice for his entering college, the gateway to any of the leading professions. But, alas! some don't get this guidance and some others with aptitude for aiming at college and the professions will come to the end of the senior year without having taken the necessary courses to gain them entrance into a first-grade college.

I wish parents and their high school youths would confer with the school as their child's program is made for next year. I wish this would be done not only for those students who plan to study beyond the high school, but also for those who are thinking in terms of non-professional fields, where most will have to be.

There are good books for youths, parents and teachers to read concerning vocations. A list of such books may be had by riting me in careo f this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. In like manner you may receive a list of books on choosing a college.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE CORRECT ORDER

Two different plays may be available to you in the effort to make your contract, either of which will solve you problem if it works. Before deciding which you will try, weigh them against success, but don't let your thinking end there. Perhaps you can attempt both plays, if you make the correct choice as to which you will essay first. If you tackle the wrong one first, maybe it will be imposible to use the other play afterward.

All of the players using the Blackwood convention in the duplicate where this hand was dealt bid the small slam in spades when North showed his two aces, and all got the club Q lead, but not all made the contract. One, who was set, won the first trick in his own hand, dropped trumps, led toward the heart K, West winning his A and returning a second club to the A. This declarer then discarded a club on the heart K and lost the diamond finesse, being down one.

William J. Huske, canny veteran, won the first trick with the club K, laid down his spade K, then switched so as to save the spade A for a dummy entry. He led the heart 4, West winning and returning a spade to the Q. Mr. Huske then led to the club A, dropped a club on the heart K, ruffed a third club with the spade J, setting up the thirteener, led to the spade A and on the last club discarded the diamond J. Note that, if East or West had held four clubs, the diamond finesee would still have remained for another chance to prevent a loser in that suit.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 25.

An important day, with large and expansive forces combining to make for success in major objectives, with the promise of rich returns for meritorious propositions and sound ambitions, is forecast. This may attract hearty support from influential persons or those of ample capital for promotion. But these must be approached with tact and sagacity, since there is a menace from impetuosity, rash or excitable tactics. There also are signs of craft, duplicity or other sinister complications. Beware of extravagance and over-indulgence.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very progressive and expansive year, with things moving toward high goals of achievement and satisfaction, especially in launching new and ambitious projects. But use tact and restraint when approaching superiors or influential persons for financial support. Avoid subtle pitfalls, snares or treacheries, and refrain from rash, impulsive and extravagant behavior, in social as well as business contacts.

A child born on this day may be efficient, ambitious and clever, but also may have impetuous, arduous or tempestuous moods to its detriment. Its good nature, friendliness and generosity should enhance its prestige and popularity if prudently managed.

THESE next few weeks are the ones when home becomes nothing more than a house with all the furniture setting about at odd angles, rolled up rugs and gaping, uncurtained windows. . . . That's right, it's housecleaning time, and a general state of hubbub is upon us. . . . So while you're transforming your home into a spotless place, don't let your poor hands suffer. . . . The downtown stores are showing some very good rubber gloves for just such protection now. . . . One style that can be worn with ease for all kinds of work features a fleece lining—No, they're not warm and their advantage over other rubber gloves is that the fleece absorbs the perspiration from your hands. . . . When it comes time for you to use cleaning fluids, you'll be more than thankful to slip on gloves and spare your hands—And there are gloves now which can be used in any kind of liquid, no matter how strong, because they're not made of rubber, but from a composition combining limestone, coal and salt.

* * * * *

And when you finish cleaning, you'll be sure to want a new shade of nailpolish to add to the beauty of your pretty, protected hands.... Three special shades for spring are "Whimsey," "Hot Pink" and "Spring Fever." . . . The first is soft, pale pink, while the second has the rosy, red tone of a well ripened watermelon, and the latter is a bright, true red color.

* * *

While you're dressing up your hands, you mustn't overlook your face. . . . The new "Nite and Day" foundation lotion will bring radiance and new beauty to your complexion almost like magic. . . . It is ideal because it covers blemishes and lets your rouge and powder blend smoothly, clinging for hours. . . . Available in four flattering shades, this lotion can be used with equally good results on dry, normal or oily skin. . . . Cameo is for light complexions, Velvet Pink for medium ones, Desert Sand for dark and sun tanned skins, and Evening Glo for wear when the lights are soft and low.

* * *

WITH this fine foundation, you'll want to have just the right make-up. . . . And nothing could be nicer for spring and summer wear than an "Air-Spun" ensemble. . . . Made by a famous manufacturer of perfume and powder, these matched make-up accessories of powder, rouge and lipstick will give your face a color-perfect look. . . . Ensembles can be purchased scented with the favorite perfumes of this line—"L'Origan," "L'Aimant," "Emeraude" and "Paris." . . . Oh yes, and when you buy a box of the powder, you receive, as a gift, a clever purse gadget containing rouge and lipstick in harmonizing shades.

* * *

If you're looking for something to keep your figure trim and streamlined, you'll find the answer in one of the very new "living" girdles. . . . Made of liquid latex, these garments come in many sizes, and one of the most important features is that they have no seams to bulge 'neath the most fitted dresses. . . . They're called "living" because you can participate in the most strenuous sport or sit sedately at a lecture with equal ease and enjoyment while wearing one. These girdles come in pink, blue and white, and can be washed off with warm soap suds and patted dry with a towel in the twinkling of an eye.

* * *

MARTHA SLEEPER, Hollywood actress, has designed some of the cutest lapel gadgets ever. . . . They're grasshoppers, bumble bees, spiders, beetles and lady bugs, made of a combination of bright colored leather, braid and pipe cleaners—with wings of cellophane and feather antennae.

* * *

AND IN CONCLUSION: The smartest necklaces for summer wear are those new ones called "spun sugar." It's really glistening hemp they're made of, but it does look more like spun sugar. . . . These necklaces can be purchased in double strands of one shade, such as red, blue, white, coral, pink or combinations of the two colors—either knotted or plain—And the newest things in handkerchiefs are those silhouette ones which feature bright colored figures or profiles on contrasting backgrounds, also in gay colors.

* * *

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

The verdict? Our farm hostess put it in these words "I can hardly believe it, but it tastes exactly like mine when fresh-made."

Now that was a gratifying compliment which SMUCKER'S Old-Fash oned Cider Apple Butter humbly accepted. And deserved.

Started Business On Shoestring

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Two or three weeks ago a correspondent, confronted by a dreadful alternative, wrote to this column for eleventh-hour suggestions.

Well-educated, but forced to earn her living as a char-woman, she found it impossible to properly care for her children. A woman, well placed socially, offered to take them if the mother agreed not to see them in the future.

Readers of this column who have managed "to knock a living out of life on practically nothing" as one of them put it to me, have offered such valuable suggestions for starting a business on little or no capital that it seems well worth while to give their experiences.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Several times I have been asked to write an account of how I started my successful florist business on a shoestring. Not until I read the account in your column of a mother forced to give up her children for adoption, because she couldn't care for them, have I considered doing this.

"I've just been too busy, but once I was desperate, with children to care for and positively no money. I thought of everything. Finally this plan came to me. I visited several clergymen and asked if among their parishioners there was one who would let me have the use of a plot of ground on which to raise flowers. I had always had what is known as 'the growing hand.' And as my chief talent, I determined to see what it would do for us.

"A good many of these gentlemen were decidedly bored with my suggestion. I found much that could not be labeled 'Christian charity.' Finally, one good old man seemed to take an interest in our case. (We were on relief at the time.) He persuaded a parishioner with a place in the suburbs to let me have a half acre plot.

"My older son plowed the ground with a hand plow which he borrowed. The clergyman actually advanced fifteen dollars for fertilizer—I used a commercial manure. I sold my mother's breastpin and bought flower seeds and bulbs, deciding on perennials rather than annuals, with a few exceptions, such as gladioli bulbs which are easy to grow and have a ready market.

"We started to work, my two boys and I (they were 13 and 15 years of age) as soon as frost was out of the ground, around the first of April in our part of the country. We watered, weeded, transplanting as soon as the young plants showed a few leaves. During this time we could often have enjoyed second helpings at the table if we had them. Still our courage remained high as the little plants grew.

"Fortunately, our borrowed plot of ground was at a bus intersection, and I was out with my flower basket every morning. More girls than men bought flowers. I suppose they liked them for their desks. And here's a tip: Never sell flowers with a sorrowful expression. Sell flowers happily. That was the beginning of our business which now owns two greenhouses.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Where are all the others?" I asked Dicky when he, Lillian and I were on our way upstairs again, for we had seen no member of the family in evidence since our return.

"Cow-er-r--r-ing in their respective rooms," Dicky answered with a grin. "Dad told me to put the fear of God into 'em, and I did, all but Katrina. She refused to be cowed, said she'd keep the kids inside under lock and key, and that she'd have to look after Ede because Miss Whitlock was busy with Dad. But I guess Ede is still sleeping her fool head off, so Katrina's incommunicado, too."

"We try to give our best to our public," Dicky declaimed, and then we were at my father's door, and Miss Whitlock's voice was saying "Come in."

"If you're ready," my father said briskly when we neared the table, "suppose we get to work."

"I locked up the papers, Father," I said, "when we went down to dinner, but I won't be a second getting them."

"My fault, Dad," I heard Dicky say as I hurried out of the door. "I rushed them up here so fast they had no time to think of papers."

Once clear of the room, I rushed down the hall to Lillian's room, retrieved Miss Carman's maps and files and our own map of the attic from their hiding place and was back so quickly that my father looked at me with anxiety and disapproval.

"You've been running!" he said accusingly.

"Guilty as charged, your Honor," I answered smiling, "but I think you'll find that these are worth a race."

I opened the bundles and spread out the maps and files before him, putting uppermost the map of the exit, stairs and tunnel from our own attic, and the rough map of the inside of the attic which Lillian and I had made just before we left for Miss Carman's home. My father bent over them closely, tracing the lines with experienced fingers, while we watched him with intent interest.

"If these lines and your computations are correct," he said at last with a composure that I guessed was forced, "this entrance to the stairs and tunnel must be in the chimney breast on the west side of the old attic."

"There's just one way to settle that, Chief," Lillian said with sparkling eyes, "and that is to go up in the attic and find out."

GROW YOUR OWN SHALLOTS

Shallots, so popular in England, are also growing in popularity in this country. Nowadays one often sees them mentioned in recipes and listed upon menus. Since shallots are milder in taste than their cousins, the onion, many people would use them if they knew they could grow their own.

In England, the shallot bulbs are planted by merely pushing them into the soil to half their depth. In this country most people plant them in drills 2 inches deep in the same manner that onion sets are planted.

When the tops wither the shallots are mature and should be dug up. Allow them to dry in the sun before storing.

Let Child Select Occupation

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

"What are you going to make out of him?" I once heard a man ask my father. I was the him. I must have been about 12 then.

"I don't think he'll make much of a farmer," I remember hearing my father say. But I don't recall that he gave a positive answer and I'm glad to say he never tried to dictate the vocational choices of his children. But he did try to encourage us in the respective fields we chose.

I must have been about 15 when I made up my mind to be a teacher. But the only teachers I had ever known were those who taught in the ungraded country school. I recall the thrill I had when I made up my mind that "I can be a teacher." This feeling lasted for hours that day and recurred repeatedly for days and days. I was dragging brush which had been pruned from the apple trees in the orchard behind the house into a big heap and burning them. As the blaze leaped high it seemed to symbolize the glow I felt within me. I began teaching the next year and, except for the years attending college and university, have been teaching since. I wonder what might have been my experience if my father and mother had told me I had to become a butcher, doctor or engineer.

Are Commanded.

A great many youths have told or written me of their grief over being commanded by their parents not to prepare for a vocation they have had their hearts set upon, or to prepare for one they despise. A certain high school senior told me amid tears, for example, that she had long wished to enter the nursing profession but that her parents forbade her doing so, telling her she must enter the teaching field. "I hate the thought of teaching," she said. That girl had my sympathy and I also felt concern for the children she might teach.

Then many a parent insists that his child must enter one of the professions when none may have any appeal to this child, even if he has the necessary brains and educational preparation. If, as often happens, the child lacks in mental aptitude, his efforts at entering a profession will mean inevitable sorrow and disappointment.

Some Get Guidance.

Fortunately, in the best high schools the child who lags in such subjects as science, mathematics or a foreign language is guided into courses he might succeed in but which would not suffice for his entering college, the gateway to any of the leading professions. But, alas! some don't get this guidance and some others with aptitude for aiming at college and the professions will come to the end of the senior year without having taken the necessary courses to gain them entrance into a first-grade college.

I wish parents and their high school youths would confer with the school as their child's program is made for next year. I wish this would be done not only for those students who plan to study beyond the high school, but also for those who are thinking in terms of non-professional fields, where most will have to be.

There are good books for youths, parents and teachers to read concerning vocations. A list of such books may be had by riting me in careo f this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. In like manner you may receive a list of books on choosing a college.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE CORRECT ORDER

Two different plays may be available to you in the effort to make your contract, either of which will solve you problem if it works. Before deciding which you will try, weigh them against success, but don't let your thinking end there. Perhaps you can attempt both plays, if you make the correct choice as to which you will essay first. If you tackle the wrong one first, maybe it will be imposible to use the other play afterward.

All of the players using the Blackwood convention in the duplicate where this hand was dealt bid the small slam in spades when North showed his two aces, and all got the club Q lead, but not all made the contract. One, who was set, won the first trick in his own hand, dropped trumps, led toward the heart K, West winning his A and returning a second club to the A. This declarer then discarded a club on the heart K and lost the diamond finesse, being down one.

William J. Huske, canny veteran, won the first trick with the club K, laid down his spade K, then switched so as to save the spade A for a dummy entry. He led the heart 4, West winning and returning a spade to the Q. Mr. Huske then led to the club A, dropped a club on the heart K, ruffed a third club with the spade J, setting up the thirteener, led to the spade A and on the last club discarded the diamond J. Note that, if East or West had held four clubs, the diamond finesee would still have remained for another chance to prevent a loser in that suit.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 25.

An important day, with large and expansive forces combining to make for success in major objectives, with the promise of rich returns for meritorious propositions and sound ambitions, is forecast. This may attract hearty support from influential persons or those of ample capital for promotion. But these must be approached with tact and sagacity, since there is a menace from impetuosity, rash or excitable tactics. There also are signs of craft, duplicity or other sinister complications. Beware of extravagance and over-indulgence.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very progressive and expansive year, with things moving toward high goals of achievement and satisfaction, especially in launching new and ambitious projects. But use tact and restraint when approaching superiors or influential persons for financial support. Avoid subtle pitfalls, snares or treacheries, and refrain from rash, impulsive and extravagant behavior, in social as well as business contacts.

A child born on this day may be efficient, ambitious and clever, but also may have impetuous, arduous or tempestuous moods to its detriment. Its good nature, friendliness and generosity should enhance its prestige and popularity if prudently managed.

Sabotage at U.S. Marine Air Base Foiled by Sentry

G-MEN START WIDE SEARCH FOR SUSPECT

Destruction of U. S. Military Secrets Believed Aim of Quantico Firebrand.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — G-men launched an intensive search today for a suspected saboteur who shot a sentry and escaped when he was surprised in the act of breaking into a hangar at the marine corps air base at Quantico, Va.

The assault on the hangar was disclosed only last night, although it took place shortly after midnight Sunday. First reports were that the hangar contained one of the United States' most valuable military secrets—a new bomb sight.

Marine corps officials, however, said the particular bomb sight is not used by the first marine aircraft group, based at Quantico. They added that they believed sabotage was intended due to discovery of what was apparently an improvised torch discarded by the prowler in his flight.

Agents of the special sabotage squad of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were reported watching Potomac river and Chesapeake Bay points, in the belief that the prowler approached and left the airfield by the nearby river.

The air base guard was doubled and sentries were mounted on all roads entering and leaving the field as soon as the affair was reported. This heightened the G-men's conviction that the suspected saboteur could not have made his escape by land.

The "torch" that was found comprised a long pole to which gasoline-soaked burlap had been attached. Officials said they believed the prowler intended to set fire to the gasoline tanks of one of the planes in the hangar, counting on the length of the pole to save him from the first flash of flame.

Investigators said they believed the saboteur expected the explosion, hurling flaming gasoline, would set fire to other hangars and wreck the flying base. Some of America's newest and most powerful fighting planes are berthed at Quantico. Marine corps officials said their loss would have been considered serious.

The prowler was surprised by a sentry as he attempted to enter the hangar. When challenged, he drew a revolver and fired one shot into the sentry's abdomen. The sentry fired one shot back before collapsing. His condition was reported today as not serious.

Winners In Essay Contest Feted By Congressman

Twelve Ohio school pupils, including one from Ashland, who were winners among 175,000 contestants in the American Legion essay contest this year, were guests yesterday at a luncheon given in Washington, D. C., by Congressman J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district which includes Richland county.

The boys and girls, chaperoned by State Commander R. B. Gardner of Mansfield, and Mrs. Gardner, are being taken on a tour this week of Washington, Norfolk, Yorktown, Charlottesville, Va., and Gettysburg. The trip was the award to contest winners. It is a part of the American Legion's Americanism program and has come to be an annual affair.

Congressman McGregor entertained the entire group yesterday with other members of the Ohio congressional delegation at Washington. The boys and girls were taken to both the house and senate galleries during their Washington stay.

In the party of students is Marilyn Barnett of Ashland. The party also includes several state officers of the Legion and the Legion auxiliary. They will return to Columbus Sunday afternoon.

Two Mansfield girls who went to Athens last Friday to attend the co-hop spring formal at Ohio university, arrived just in time to be marooned by the waters of the Ohio river tributaries. The roads became impassable because of high waters after they arrived. The girls, Miss Bertha Jesson, West Third street, and Miss Elizabeth Gaubatz, Fourth avenue, had intended to return home Saturday but instead they were forced to remain until Monday afternoon. They stayed in one of the girls' dormitories and their "back yard" view was of 10 feet of water, covering many buildings up to the second story.

BREAKS WINDOW

Then Thief Takes Radio From Lexington Hardware Store.

Investigating the theft of a radio from the Kell hardware store at Lexington last night, Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman said today that the act was believed to be the work of juveniles and is believed to be connected with the burglary of the Sowers filling station.

Freeman said that someone had thrown a brick through the window of the store during the night and then took a portable radio valued at $29.95 from the window display.

The Sowers station has been broken into twice within the past few weeks and each time the loot consisted of peanuts and candy. More valuable items were overlooked, Freeman said.

300 TOLD OF LIGHT'S FUTURE

Engineer Pictures Television Screens as Large as Room in Use in Homes.

The beauties of the world and the most exciting of world events will be brought into the homes of tomorrow, according to Samuel G. Hibben, lighting engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company of Montclair, N. J., who spoke today at the Rural Electrification conference at the Westinghouse plant.

The conference opened Monday and closes today. About 300 have attended the conference, coming from all over the United States.

Artificial light, he told the group, has passed the age in which it is purely utilitarian and is entering an era in which, like great music, it will appeal to men's senses.

He said it required no great stretch of the imagination to picture television screens as large as the wall of a room, and that on this screen there could be flashed the pictures of a California sunset, the sunrise over Niagara Falls; the sea under a storm and such events as prize fights and great concerts.

"Lamps of tomorrow will mood-condition our homes, paint pleasing and ever-changing scenes on our walls," Hibben said. "They will kill bacteria and so guard us against disease; they will provide health-giving radiation and sun-tan while we sleep."

Hibben, a native of Hillsboro, O., is a member of the New York World's fair committee on lighting. Yesterday he addressed Mansfield Rotarians.

TAFT EXPECTS TO LEAD DEWEY IN DELEGATES AT CONVENTION

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Despite Thomas E. Dewey's lead in primary-picked delegates, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio said today he expected to enter the Republican national convention with more votes than the New York district attorney.

Taft did not mention a specific figure in talking to reporters, but his managers have estimated that he would have between 300 and 370 of the 1,000 delegates when the convention opens.

His strength will be largely in uninstructed southern groups, 52 from the forthcoming Ohio primary, and an expected block from some of Ohio's neighboring states.

The selection of Pennsylvania Republican and Democratic delegations with 72 votes did not formally affect the political picture, for the two groups were not pledged.

The Republicans have picked 411 of their 1,000 delegates; the Democrats 328 of their 1,094. Six more Republican delegates were to be selected today at a Delaware convention.

President Roosevelt's lead in delegate strength, including those pledged and claimed for him as a result of unbinding primaries, was raised to 275 as a result of the Pennsylvania voting.

The chief executive was unopposed in the Democratic preference balloting. Even though the 72 delegates elected were not bound by that vote, they are regarded by New Deal leaders as the president's for the asking.

Pennsylvania's Republican convention votes may go to Gov. Arthur H. James on the first ballot, party leaders here said. No candidate had entered the preferential primary.

In next month's primaries Dewey is expected to pick up 16 delegates in Maryland and 32 in New Jersey. He is unopposed in both states.

Gordon Watson, 91 West Dickson avenue, was issued a permit to construct a $4,000 residence at 223 Walter avenue, and Zediker Masonry company, will build an $800 office on South Walnut street, at the rear of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

CONGRESSMEN TRY TO SPEED RELIEF FUNDS

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI — The Ohio, a wide and tawny river in one of its periodic floods, was expected to crest here today, leaving a muddy trail 50 miles long behind it but little damage.

Weather bureau observers predicted the river would reach a 60-foot stage, eight feet above the flood level, by noon and then remain stationary at the crest for 24 hours before starting its run-out.

While river men credited adequate preparation for holding down flood losses, two Ohio congressmen sought to speed up financing of protective works.

Rep. Charles H. Elston, Cincinnati Republican, announced in Washington that members of the house flood control committee favored his proposal to authorize local governments to advance funds for the use of army engineers in flood control work.

Rep. Harold K. Claypool said in Chillicothe that he would ask the flood control committee to recommend an $8,500,000 appropriation for work in Pickaway and Ross counties.

Agriculture adjustment administration officials in Hamilton and Warren counties announced that indemnities on flood damaged wheat under the AAA crop insurance plan would be paid as soon as losses were verified by county conservation committees.

Most of the damage during the past week was caused by flash floods in tributaries of the Ohio rather than the steady rise of the big stream itself.

Huntington, W. Va., lay snug behing its uncompleted flood wall. Last year's flood reached about the same stage there and forced 3,000 persons out of homes, forced closing of Marshall college, and halted industrial activity.

The river above the Cincinnati district was stationary or falling. Light rains yesterday and this morning were expected to have little or no effect.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Surest box-office bet on the sound stages today is "Boom Town." No matter what the critics may think of it, this is already a "four-star picture"—Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr.

Jack Conway is directing it. Once before Conway had a similar job—on "Libeled Lady," which had William Powell, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and the late Jean Harlow. That was a hit of its year.

"Boom Town" must be an unusual script. Stars usually wear themselves out in the search for a script that provides one starring opportunity. This one, says Conway, has four such roles. His actors seem to agree—although Tracy is conceded a slight edge in "audience appeal" on his assignment.

The picture is about oil and the oil fields, but the set today is a palatial interior — huge living room, enormous fireplace, big bearskin rug on the floor, rich furnishings. Where's all the rough, he-man, outdoor stuff?

* * *

"This," explains Conway, "is where Gable has struck it rich and has become a millionaire. In an hour and 10 minutes, however, he won't have a dime. He loses it all on the toss of a coin—that kind of fellow."

This is a scene between Gable and Colbert, who is and ought to be very happy about the whole thing. Claudette signed for two pictures at Metro, on the understanding that in one of them she should play opposite Gable or Tracy. Perhaps in atonement for "It's a Wonderful World," her first at the studio, Metro gave her both of them for the second.

Claudette is Gable's wife in the picture. For this scene she is wearing an Adrian dinner gown, very simple, very costly, of filmy white flowered in black. There is a dog in the scene, a cocky nondescript mutt who perches on the arm of Claudette's chair (held carefully off her dress, though) and ogles the camera furiously.

As Gable and Colbert go through the scene, which ends in a kiss, the pooch is very much in evidence, standing on a divan and still ogling the camera. "There," laughs Gable, "is the scene-stealer we all have to worry about."

There is a lot of joking, naturally, about scene-stealing. There always is when four top-flighters are together in one picture.

* * *

Claudette, always the serious career woman, as usual discusses the scenes with the director during rehearsals. Claudette always has ideas—"perhaps if I said the line this way," or "don't you think it might be better if . . ." Many stars talk it over thus, but few with the ardor of a Colbert. Today Colbert and the rest got a howl out of an amusing dialog in which her Little-Miss-Fixit tendencies boomeranged.

Claudette was rehearsing, the dog on her chair-arm, when the dog's trainer instructed him to change his stance. The pooch obeyed immediately.

"He takes direction better than I do," Claudette laughed.

"Well—er—at least," cracked back Director Conway, "he doesn't argue about it!"
